

The Older Adult Assessment: Home-Based Primary Care

Topic: Health & Medicine | Words: 471 | Pages: 4

As a summary of the patient's psychosocial interview, emphasis can be placed on the point that he is not a classic case of an elderly care client. John prefers to act independently, has an excellent psychological and physiological condition, and seeks medical help only when necessary. The results of the physical and mental functional assessment will be presented further.

Physical and Mental Functional Assessment: Tinetti Balance and Gait Evaluation

The gait and balance assessment results show good results for the patient and a low risk. No significant age-related deterioration was found on almost all items (Appendix B).

Katz Index of Activities of Daily Living

The older adult under observation has no observable problems in daily living activities at this time (Appendix C; Pashmdarfard & Azad, 2020).

Assessment of Home Safety

The observed elderly person has reached a reasonable level in terms of home space optimization. For himself and his wife, the patient has organized his living and interior space efficiently (Appendix D).

The Barthel Index

The Barthel Index is based on interviews with the patient, his relatives, and observation (Bouwstra et al., 2019). The results for the observed age
