Rachael Low's History of British Cinema Rachael Low, 1949 The Brighton School and the Birth of British Film Frank Gray, 2019-07-16 This study is devoted to the work of two early British filmmakers George Albert Smith and James Williamson and the films that they made around 1900 Internationally they are known collectively as the Brighton School and are positioned as being at the forefront of Britain's contribution to the birth of film The book focuses on the years 1896 to 1903 as it was during this short period that film emerged as a new technology a new enterprise and a new form of entertainment Beginning with a historiography of the Brighton School the study goes on to examine the arrival of the first 35mm films in Britain the first film exhibitions in Brighton and the first projection of film in Brighton Both Smith and Williamson's work features a progression from the production of single shot unedited films to multi shot edited films Their subject matter was inspired by a knowledge of contemporary pantomime humour literature theatre mesmerism the magic lantern and current affairs and their practices were underpinned by active involvement in the new film trade Through the exploration of how these filmmakers cultivated a new way of understanding film and its commercial potential this book establishes them as key figures in the development of British film culture Robert Paul and the Origins of British Cinema Ian Christie, 2019-12-09 The early years of film were dominated by competition between inventors in America and France especially Thomas Edison and the Lumi re brothers But while these have generally been considered the foremost pioneers of film they were not the only crucial figures in its inception Telling the story of the white hot years of filmmaking in the 1890s Robert Paul and the Origins of British Cinema seeks to restore Robert Paul Britain's most important early innovator in film to his rightful place From improving upon Edison's Kinetoscope to cocreating the first movie camera in Britain to building England's first film studio and launching the country's motion picture industry Paul played a key part in the history of cinema worldwide It's not only Paul's story however that historian Ian Christie tells here Robert Paul and the Origins of British Cinema also details the race among inventors to develop lucrative technologies and the jumbled culture of patent snatching showmanship and music halls that prevailed in the last decade of the nineteenth century Both an in depth biography and a magnificent look at early cinema and fin de si cle Britain Robert Paul and the Origins of British Cinema is a first rate cultural history of a fascinating era of global invention and the revelation of one of its undervalued contributors The Sounds of the Silents in Britain Julie Brown, Annette Davison, 2013 Early cinemas were noisy places with pianos organs ensembles of all varieties and sometimes full orchestras accompanied films Britain a key cultural player in the entertainment world both at the time and now has a different history than the US of musical cultures and film production Film Histories Paul Grainge, 2007-01-11 An introduction to film history this anthology covers the history of film from 1895 It is arranged chronologically and each chapter contains an introduction on the key developments within the period Various types of film history are undertaken to enable students to become familiar with different types of film historical research Film Restoration L. Enticknap, 2013-11-13 This is the first monograph length work intended to enable readers with a humanities background and the general public to understand what the processes and techniques of film restoration do and do not involve attempting to integrate systematically a discussion about related technological and cultural issues Audiences Ian Christie, 2012 This timely volume engages with one of the most important shifts in recent film studies the turn away from text based analysis towards the viewer Historically this marks a return to early interest in the effect of film on the audience by psychoanalysts and psychologists which was overtaken by concern with the effects of film linked to calls for censorship and moral panics rather than to understanding the mental and behavioral world of the spectator Early cinema history has revealed the diversity of film viewing habits while traditional box office studies which treated the audience initially as a homogeneous market have been replaced by the study of individual consumers and their motivations Latterly there has been a marked turn towards more sophisticated economic and sociological analysis of attendance data And as the film experience fragments across multiple formats the perceptual and cognitive experience of the individual viewer who is also an auditor has become increasingly accessible With contributions from Gregory Waller John Sedgwick and Martin Barker this work spans the spectrum of contemporary audience studies revealing work being done on local non theatrical and live digital transmission audiences and on the relative attraction of large scale domestic and mobile platforms Publisher's website

Silent to Sound British Cinema in Transition takes a lively and comprehensive look at the production side of the British sound revolution stretching from experimental efforts in the late 19th century through the sound shorts of the 1920s to the key year of 1929 the year of Hitchcock's Blackmail Britain's first home grown talkie feature and the industry turmoil that followed The narrative concludes in 1934 when John Grierson's GPO Film Unit finally acquired sound equipment prompting a late burst of experimentation just when commercial feature soundtracks had settled down Films familiar neglected and unknown are examined overripe melodramas the lost Black Waters local versions of Hollywood musicals Harmony Heaven visually elaborate science fiction High Treason plus newsreels documentaries amateur films and the last phase of British silent production The impact of sound on studio technique is examined along with the industry's complex relations with Britain's strong theatre traditions with Europe and above all cinema's superpower America It's also never forgotten that the sound transition was shaped not just by technology but by the talents foibles and follies of individual people Film history with a human face
