Woman Rules Within Jessica Dvorak Moyer, 2020-08-17 In Woman Rules Within Domestic Space and Genre in Qing Vernacular Literature Jessica Dvorak Moyer compares depictions of household space and women s networks in texts across a range of genres from about 1600 to 1800 C E Analyzing vernacular transformations of classical source texts as well as vernacular stories and novels Moyer shows that vernacular genres use expansive detail about architectural space and the everyday domestic world to navigate a variety of ideological tensions particularly that between ging emotion and li ritual propriety and to flesh out characters whose actions challenge the norms of gendered spatial practice even as they ultimately uphold the gender order Woman Rules Within contributes a new understanding of the role of colloquial language in late Practices of the Sentimental Imagination Jonathan Zwicker, 2020-03-23 The history of the book in imperial literature nineteenth century Japan follows an uneven course that resists the simple chronology often used to mark the divide between premodern and modern literary history By examining the obscured histories of publication circulation and reception of widely consumed literary works from late Edo to the early Meiji period Jonathan Zwicker traces a genealogy of the literary field across a long nineteenth century one that stresses continuities between the generic conventions of early modern fiction and the modern novel In the literature of sentiment Zwicker locates a tear streaked lens through which to view literary practices and readerly expectations that evolved across the century Practices of the Sentimental Imagination emphasizes both qualitative and quantitative aspects of literary production and consumption balancing close readings of canonical and noncanonical texts sophisticated applications of critical theory and careful archival research into the holdings of nineteenth century lending libraries and private collections By exploring the relationships between and among Japanese literary works

Wan, 2009-01-05 Martial arts fiction has been synonymous with popular fiction in China from the Qing dynasty on This book the first to trace the early development of the martial arts novel in China demonstrates that the genre took shape nearly a century earlier than generally recognized Green Peony 1800 one of the earliest martial arts novels lies at the center of a web of literary relations connecting many of the significant genres of fiction in its day Adapted from a drum ballad Green Peony parodies both previous popular fiction and the great Ming novels generating

Brokaw, 2020-03-23 Sibao today is a cluster of impoverished villages in the mountains of western Fujian Yet from the late seventeenth through the early twentieth century it was home to a flourishing publishing industry Through itinerant booksellers and branch bookshops managed by Sibao natives this industry supplied much of south China with cheap educational texts household guides medical handbooks and fortune telling manuals It is precisely the ordinariness of Sibao imprints that make them valuable for the study of commercial publishing the text production process and the geographical and social expansion of book culture in Chinese society In a study with important implications for cultural and economic history Cynthia Brokaw describes rural lower level publishing and bookselling operations at the end of the imperial period Commerce in Culture traces how the poverty and isolation of Sibao necessitated a bare bones approach to publishing and bookselling and how the Hakka identity of the Sibao publishers shaped the configuration of their distribution networks and even the nature of their publications Sibao s industry reveals two major trends in print culture the geographical extension of commercial woodblock publishing to hinterlands previously untouched by commercial book culture and the related social penetration of texts to lower status levels of the population Snakes' Legs Martin W. Huang, 2004-09-30 Snakes Legs examines sequels xushu a common but long neglected literary phenomenon in traditional China What prompted writers to produce seguels despite their poor reputation as a genre What motivated readers to read them How should we characterize the nature of the relationship between sequels and rewritings Contributors to this volume illuminate these and other questions and the collection as a whole offers a comprehensive consideration of this vigorous genre while suggesting fascinating new directions for research Xushu as a discursive practice reinforces the paradox that innovation is impossible without imitation It presents us with fertile ground for studying the intricate ties that bind the writer and reader of traditional Chinese fiction the writer of xushu is always self consciously assuming the dual role of author and reader and in the writing process must consider both the work in progress as well as its precursor's Snakes Legs contains detailed discussions of some representative xushu works from the late Ming and Qing periods many of which have received little scholarly attention It will shed light on the development of Chinese fiction and the various textual practices in traditional China as well as account for the genre's continuing vitality in modern times Contributors Robert E Hegel Siao chen Hu Martin W Huang Keith McMahon Qiancheng Li Ying Wang Ellen Widmer Laura H Wu Shuhui Yang The Novel. Volume 1 Franco Moretti, 2006 Publisher Description Heroines of the Qing Binbin Yang, 2016-04-01 Heroines of the Qing introduces an array of Chinese women from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries who were powerful active subjects of their own lives and who wrote themselves as the heroines of their exemplary stories Traditionally exemplary women lienu heroic martyrs chaste widows and faithful maidens for example were written into official dynastic histories for their unrelenting adherence to female virtue by Confucian family standards However despite the rich writing traditions about these women their lives were often distorted by moral and cultural agendas Binbin Yang drawing on interdisciplinary sources shows how they were able to cross boundaries that were typically closed to women boundaries not only of gender but also of knowledge economic power political engagement and ritual and cultural authority Yang closely examines the rhetorical strategies these exemplary women exploited for self representation in various writing genres and highlights their skillful negotiation with and appropriation of the values of female exemplarity for self empowerment A Companion to Chinese Art Martin J. Robinson, 2020-03-23 This collection of essays reveals the Ming court as an arena of competition and negotiation where a large cast of actors pursued individual and corporate ends personal agency shaped protocol and style and diverse people goods and tastes converged Rather than observing an immutable set of traditions court culture underwent frequent reinterpretation and rearticulation processes driven by immediate personal imperatives mediated through social political and cultural interaction The essays address several common themes First they rethink previous notions of imperial isolation instead stressing the court's myriad ties both to local Beijing society and to the empire as a whole Second the court was far from monolithic or static Palace women monks craftsmen educators moralists warriors eunuchs foreign envoys and others strove to advance their interests and forge advantageous relations with the emperor and one another Finally these case studies illustrate the importance of individual agency The founder's legacy may have formed the warp of court practices and tastes but the weft varied considerably Reflecting the complexity of the court the essays represent a variety of perspectives and disciplines from intellectual cultural military and political to art history and musicology Masculinities in Chinese History Bret Hinsch, 2013-08-30 Masculinities in Chinese History is the first historical survey of the many ways men have acted thought and behaved throughout China's
