There are two methods of determining the relative "heat" of a substance, one is to use a calorimeter, the other is to use a bomb calorimeter. The bomb calorimeter is used to determine the heat of combustion of a substance. The bomb calorimeter is a sealed container that is filled with a substance and oxygen. The bomb is then sealed and placed in a water bath. The bomb is then ignited and the heat released is measured. The heat released is then used to determine the heat of combustion of the substance.
