In this book, 37 international academics illustrate how authentic assessment is an effective measure of intellectual achievement as it requires the demonstration of deep understanding and complex problem solving through the performance of exemplary tasks. By exploring the concept of authentic assessment in both tertiary and school education, the authors in these chapters argue that authentic assessment is not only the measurement of significant intellectual accomplishments but also an important pedagogical structure. Authentic assessment is a concept more closely defined as an umbrella term that seeks to immerse learners in environments where they can gain highly practical and lifelong learning skills. Authentic assessment has been on the educational agenda for a number of years and keeps being a powerful tool for assessing students' 21st-century competencies in the context of global educational reforms. While many people see home as the domestic sphere and place of belonging, it is hard to grasp its manifold implications and even harder to provide a tidy definition of what it is. Over the past century, discussion of home and nation has been a highly complex matter with broad political ramifications, including the realignment of nation states and national boundaries. Against this backdrop, this book suggests that home is constructed on the assumption that what it defines is constantly in flux and thus can never capture an objective perspective or ultimate truth. Along these lines, Unreliable Truths offers a comparative literary approach to the construction of home and concomitant notions of uncertainty and unreliable narration in South Asian

diasporic women's literature from the UK Australia South Africa the Caribbean North America and Canada Writers discussed in detail include Feroza Jussawalla Suneeta Peres da Costa Meera Syal Farida Karodia Shani Mootoo Shobha D and Oonya Kempadoo With its focus on transcultural homes Unreliable Truths goes beyond discussions of diaspora from an established postcolonial point of view and contributes with its investigation of transcultural unreliable narration to the representation of a global South Asian diaspora
