several years of fieldwork the evolution of a cultural model of AIDS is traced In a small village in rural Haiti it was possible to document first the lack of such a model and then the elaboration over time of a widely shared representation of AIDS The experience of three villagers who died of complications of AIDS is examined in detail and the importance of their suffering to the evolution of a cultural model is demonstrated Epidemiologic and ethnographic studies are prefaced by a geographically broad historical analysis which suggests the outlines of relations between a powerful center the United States and a peripheral client state Haiti These relations constitute an important part of a political economic network termed the West Atlantic system The epidemiology of HIV and AIDS in Haiti and elsewhere in the Caribbean is reviewed and the relation between the degree of involvement in the West Atlantic system and the prevalence of HIV is suggested It is further suggested that the history of HIV in the Dominican Republic Jamaica Trinidad and Tobago and the Bahamas is similar to that documented here for Haiti
