Remaking Of Television New Zealand 1984-1992:

The Remaking of Television New Zealand 1984-1992 Barry Spicer, Michael Powell, David Emanuel, 2013-11-01 The Remaking of Television New Zealand outlines and analyses the radical changes made to television broadcasting in New Zealand during the period 1984-1992. It looks closely at how TVNZ, a division of the Broadcasting Corporation of New Zealand, was transformed into a successful commercial company under the State Owned Enterprises Act 1986. Based on remarkable inside access, this book is an important and valuable study of the transformation of a staid public television broadcaster into a market-oriented business. Television in New Zealand Roger Horrocks, Nick Perry, 2004. Introductory text aimed at undergraduate students in television media and film with an overview of the state of New Zealand television in an international context. Contemporary World Television John Sinclair, Graeme Turner, 2004-05. Publisher Description

For many years New Zealand was stereotyped as a sleepy hollow of the South Pacific but more recently it has had an influence in international affairs which belies its size. Noted more for its conservatism and stability, its green fields and sheep than for its innovation and radicalism, this most geographically isolated of English-speaking countries took pride in its role as a provider of agricultural produce for Europe. The Whimpering of the State B. H. Easton, 1999. Describes MMP implementation in New Zealand. Includes case studies on health, education, science, the arts, taxation, retirement policy and infrastructure. Policy possibilities are explored. New Zealand Books in Print, 1998. American Book Publishing Record, 1997-09.
