GEORGIAN REMINISCENCES*

II

We reached Victoria Station early one grey September morning. It was my first visit to London or to England and I was thrilled by everything, from the curious smell of English tobacco which greeted me at Newhaven and the terribly tidy and proper appearance of the countryside, to the long terraces of tall, grimy-looking, flat-faced houses peering down on the streets, for all like eyebrowless monsters—I had been accustomed to overhanging eaves and cornices over the windows. Even the greyness, so luminous and full of colour, did not depress me as it seemed to depress Monro, who was very silent and thoughtful, obviously not at all pleased to be back in London. Now and again I caught him looking at me with an expression of mild amusement on his face.

After spending a couple of days at the noisy Strand Palace Hotel, my first experience of a hotel with rooms running into the thousands, and in the quieter but dingier Haxell's Hotel, just round the corner, we were very glad to move into a set of chambers in South Square, Gray's Inn, and to settle down. The rooms were old and panelled in oak and the owner—a friend of Monro's—in furnishing them had contrived to preserve their old-world, peaceful Georgian atmosphere, which we both loved. It was this preference for Georgian London, quite as much as other considerations that, later on, was to make Monro choose an old and somewhat dilapidated house of that period in Devonshire Street, Theobald's Road, in the very heart of Bloomsbury, which at that time had not yet become the favourite quarter of the younger highbrows, as the first home of the Poetry Bookshop. Not far from us, on the other side of the Inn, 'Eddie' Marsh, who was to play such an important part in the spread of "Georgian" Poetry, had a handsome set of chambers, full of fine drawings and watercolours by young artists as well as by Eighteenth century masters, where Rupert Brooke used

* The first part of these Reminiscences, published in the April issue, were already in the press when the news reached me of Monro's death, too late to make any alterations.

Farrisee, Timothy J. Crimmins, 2022-10 This stunning fully illustrated history of the Georgia Capitol not only pays tribute to a grand old edifice but also vividly recounts the history that was made and that continues to be made within and without its walls The Georgia Capitol is a place where for more than a century legislators have debated governors have proclaimed and courts have ruled It is also a place where countless ordinary citizens have gathered in lively tour groups angry protest mobs and at times solemn funeral processions As Timothy J Crimmins and Anne H Farrisee move through the major periods in the Capitol s history they tell three interwoven stories One is a tale of the building itself its predecessors its design and construction its occasionally ill considered renovations and the magnificent decade long restoration begun in 1996 Also revealed is how the gradual accumulation of statues flags portraits and civic rituals and pageants has added new layers of meaning to an already symbolic structure The third story the authors tell is of the legislative and judicial battles that sought to limit or extend democratic freedoms Some of these events were high drama fistcuffs during a prohibition debate Eugene Talmadge s strong arm eviction of the state treasurer from the statehouse the Three Governors Controversy and an African American protest in the segregated cafeteria From the laying of the cornerstone in 1885 to the present successive generations of Georgians have created a distinctive history in and around the Capitol as they have exercised or sought to gain their rights Today the Georgia Capitol remains a working center of state government and its history continues to unfold
