Verena Schmidt,2014-02-01 Particularly in developing countries nearly one billion people are effected by nutrition insecurity in form of under or malnutrition FAO 2010 p 1 Merely by the expression of vitamin A deficiency an estimate of up to 500 000 children go blind worldwide every year WHO 2011 This survey deals with a solution approach in form of the contribution made by the orange fleshed sweet potato OFSP and its afford towards nutrition security in rural areas of Mwanza Tanzania With help of the partner organization TAHEA a retrospective population based study of the nutritional status of rural population of Mwanza was conducted and impressions on food security were reinforced through participant observation The positive influence of OFSP towards vitamin A status has been confirmed and among others an income generating function by cultivation and sale of the tuber has been observed The risk of a possible overdose must also be considered Thus the tuber is recommended as a nutritious snack or side dish but should not be advertised as a considered staple food Frank O'Hara and the Poetics of Saying 'I' Micah Mattix,2011-03-03 While recent works of criticism on Frank O'Hara have focused on the technical similarities between his poetry and painting or between his use of language and poststructuralism. Frank O'Hara and the Poetics of Saying I argues that what is most significant in O'Hara's work is not such much his borrowing from painters or his proto-Derridean use of language but his preoccupation with self-exploration and the temporal effects of his work as artifacts. Following Pasternak's understanding of artistic inspiration as an act of love for the material world, O'Hara explores moments of experience in an effort to both complicate and enrich our experience of the material world. On the one hand, in poems such as "Second Avenue" for example, O'Hara works to muddy language through which experience is in part mediated with the use of parataxis, allusions, and absurd metaphors and similes. On the other, in his "I do this I do that" poems, he names the events of his lunch hour in an effort, among other things, to experience time as a moment of fullness rather than as a moment of loss. The book argues furthermore that O'Hara's view of the self as both an expression of the creative force at work in the world and as the temporal aggregate of finite experiences places him between so-called Romantic and postmodern theories of the lyric. While it is often argued that O'Hara is a forerunner of a new critically informed materialist poetics, this study concludes that O'Hara's work is somewhat less radical in its understanding of poetic meaning than is often claimed. Moreover, while O'Hara is preoccupied with his experience in his poems, the book argues that he espouses in some respects a rather traditional view of love. In addition to being a metaphor for the creative act, love for O'Hara is the chance coming together of two entities. Yet one of the ironies of this is that while love is for O'Hara a feeling that is the result of movement or the unexpected coming together of two otherwise separate entities, it is also a feeling that is the result of movement or the unexpected coming together of two otherwise separate entities.
