Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow Roslyn Arlin Mickelson, Stephen Samuel Smith, Amy Hawn Nelson, 2017-11-14

Yesterday Today and Tomorrow provides a compelling analysis of the forces and choices that have shaped the trend toward the resegregation of public schools. By assembling a wide range of contributors—historians, sociologists, economists, and education scholars—the editors provide a comprehensive view of a community's experience with desegregation and economic development. Here we see resegregation through the lens of Charlotte, North Carolina, once a national model of successful desegregation and home of the landmark Swann desegregation case, which gave rise to school busing. This book recounts the last forty years of Charlotte's desegregation and resegregation, putting education reform in political and economic context. Within a decade of the Swann case, the district had developed one of the nation's most successful desegregation plans, measured by racial balance and improved academic outcomes for both black and white students. However, beginning in the 1990s, this plan was gradually dismantled. Today, the level of resegregation in Charlotte has almost returned to what it was prior to 1971. At the core of Charlotte's story is the relationship between social structure and human agency, with an emphasis on how yesterday's decisions and actions define today's choices. Great Expectations, As a result, there is little applicability internationally, even less interdisciplinary work, and at times an outright bias against the market economy, as such. The Commission Report is even-handed, tough-minded, and frank in discussing how it is that social science and new social and technical forces do not always mesh. The optimism exuded is measured but genuine. Great Expectations offers policy recommendations and scientific goals that can be serviceable not only in the United Kingdom but in all advanced societies in which social research is a central component of economic stability and development. It is a superb reference volume, enriched by original analysis and pungent, clear-headed writing. Members of the commission include Professor David Rhind, Vice Chancellor of the City University, who served as Chairman of the Commission.
