Savage Systems Colonialism And Comparative Religion In Southern Africa:

Savage Systems David Chidester, 1996 Savage Systems examines the emergence of the concepts of religion and religions on colonial frontiers. The book offers a detailed analysis of the ways in which European travelers, missionaries, settlers, and government agents, as well as indigenous Africans, engaged in the comparison of alternative religious ways of life as one dimension of intercultural contact. Focusing primarily on nineteenth-century frontier relations, David Chidester demonstrates that the terms and conditions for comparison, including a discourse about otherness that were established during this period, still remain. A volume in the series Studies in Religion and Culture.

Empire of Religion David Chidester, 2014-03-19 How is knowledge about religion and religions produced and how is that knowledge authenticated and circulated? David Chidester seeks to answer these questions in Empire of Religion, documenting and analyzing the emergence of a science of comparative religion in Great Britain during the second half of the nineteenth century and its complex relations to the colonial situation in southern Africa. In the process, Chidester provides a counterhistory of the academic study of religion, an alternative to standard accounts that have failed to link the field of comparative religion with either the power relations or the historical contingencies of the imperial project. In developing a material history of the study of religion, Chidester documents the importance of African religion, the persistence of the divide between savagery and civilization, and the salience of mediations, imperial, colonial, and indigenous, in which knowledge about religions was produced. He then identifies the recurrence of these mediations in a number of case studies, including Friedrich Max Müller's dependence on colonial experts H. Rider Haggard and John Buchan's fictional accounts of African religion, and W. E. B. Du Bois's studies of African religion. By reclaiming these theorists for this history, Chidester shows that race, rather than theology, was formative in the emerging study of religion in Europe and North America. Sure to be controversial, Empire of Religion is a major contribution to the field of comparative religious studies.

The Idea of Semitic Monotheism Guy G. Stroumsa, 2021-05-20. The Idea of Semitic Monotheism examines some major aspects of the scholarly study of religion in the long nineteenth century, from the Enlightenment to the First World War. It aims to understand the new status of Judaism and Islam in the formative period of the new discipline. Guy G. Stroumsa focuses on the concept of Semitic monotheism, a concept developed by Ernest Renan around the mid nineteenth century on the basis of the postulated and highly problematic contradistinction between Aryan and Semitic families of peoples, cultures and religions. This contradistinction grew from the Western discovery of Sanskrit and its relationship with European languages at the time of the Enlightenment and Romanticism. Together with the rise of scholarly Orientalism, this discovery offered new perspectives on the East as a consequence of which the Near East was demoted from its traditional status as the locus of the Biblical revelations. This innovative work studies a central issue in the modern study of religion. Doing so, however, it emphasizes the new dualistic taxonomy of religions had major consequences and sheds new light on the roots of European attitudes to Jews and Muslims in the twentieth century up to the present day.

Religion and Global Culture Jennifer I. M. Reid, 2003-02-22. Religion and Global Culture draws together the work of a group of historians of religion who are concerned with situating the contemporary study of religion within the cultural complexity of the modern world. The writing of each of the volume's contributors relates to the work of leading historian of religion Charles H. Long, who has identified religious meanings in the contacts and exchanges of the colonial and postcolonial periods. Together with Long, these scholars explore religious practices in a variety of globalized contexts; chapters consider such varied subjects as the rituals of African immigrant communities in the United States the making of Mohawk sweet grass and black ash baskets the religious experience of prisoners in the Nazi holding camp of Westerbork and the regional repercussions of contemporary multi national business By locating religion in the conflicted and cooperative relationships of the colonial and postcolonial periods Religion and Global Culture calls on scholars of religion to reconfigure their interpretive stances from the perspective of the material structures of the modern globalized world RePresenting Magic, UnDoing

Evil: Of Human Inner Light and Darkness Alexandra Cheira, 2020-04-14 This volume was first published by Inter Disciplinary Press in 2012 The chapters assembled in this e Book are a taste of an ongoing discussion on evil and magic which promises to last as long as the only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing and while the realisation that magic is believing in yourself if you can do that you can make anything happen does not become a global motto The first group of chapters collected in Part I addresses the ethics and effects of translating magic into literary representations as well as real life current practices of creativity and personal change on the one hand and of the harmful malevolent infliction of pain on a third party on another thus challenging the boundaries of the cultural binary constructions of magic as either good or evil In Part II the second group of chapters examines several philosophical theological historical literary political and pop culture attempts towards understanding different meanings and kinds of evil thus broadening our perception of what evil is and how it has been theorized from Plato to contemporary international politics This is our time our call our responsibility to undo evil by carrying the magical torch of good to the next station so that good as if by magic can also become contagious among the human kind Postcolonial Imagination and Feminist Theology Pui-lan
