

Schooling, society and inclusive education

an Afrocentric perspective

Edited by Chinedu Okeke · Michael van Wyk · Narsadi Phashe

What is inclusive education? Why is an African perspective so relevant to current educational theory and practice? How can new thinking about African pedagogies and indigenous knowledge be applied in a culturally diverse country such as South Africa?

Schooling, society and inclusive education discusses the interrelated dynamics of schooling, society and inclusive education. It focuses on the professional knowledge and social skills teacher like about students need to succeed. This new introductory text foregrounds an African philosophy and its application to current education practice in a complex multicultural environment.

Three carefully structured parts, alternative ways of knowing, the child and dynamics of the environment, and understanding teacher education, address many of the critical issues that teachers in the African, and particularly South African, context face. These include barriers to learning and teaching, poverty, violence, and the impact of social attacks.

This book features:

- case studies to take students into the rooms and lives of the various chapters, while also sharing students' own experiences and insights
- many 'stop and reflect' questions and activities to guide students through the material, while engaging them critically in the course
- regular 'Reconnecting what we know sections', which give students a wider perspective on current thinking and developments in the topics
- various further end-of-chapter activities for reflection, application, debate, and research projects, which students can use as part of their coursework
- a comprehensive glossary to ensure students are familiar with the subject-specific terminology and concepts discussed

This is for senior undergraduate and postgraduate students in a range of BA and PGD courses, including modules in inclusive education, education studies, and teacher professionalisation courses. It is also suitable for practising teachers and education managers on in-service programmes.

Schools and Societies is a gem of volume that combines in one comprehensive text superb theoretical acuity and scholarly judgment a keen sense of the connection of research to policy and a breadth of coverage that reflects the multidimensionality of education as an institution in a manner rare in social scientific treatments of education It deserves to be the leading survey of this field for a long time to come Paul DiMaggio Princeton University Re-schooling Society David Hartley, 1997 This text describes and explains the sense of uncertainty faced by educators as the millenium approaches It highlights the many transitions taking place in all aspects of public life and education during the postmodern phase of late capitalism by using examples from the study of childhood curriculum pedagogy assessment and organization of education It also considers attempts made so far by policy makers in the western industrialized nations to come to terms with rapid cultural and social changes whilst at the same time trying to maintain competitive economies to meet the growing challenge of the emergent Pacific Rim nations The School and Society John Dewey, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1900 edition Excerpt III WASTE IN EDUCATION The subject announced for today was Waste in Education I should like first to state briefly its relation to the two preceding lectures The first dealt with the school in its social aspects and the necessary re adjustments that have to be made to render it effective in present social conditions The second dealt with the school in relation to the growth of individual children Now the third deals with the school as itself an institution both in relation to society and to its own members the children It deals with the question of organization because all waste is the result of the lack of it the motive lying behind organization being promotion of economy and efficiency This question is not one of the waste of money or the waste of things These matters count but the primary waste is that of human life the life of the children while they are at school and afterward because of inadequate and perverted preparation So when we speak of organization we are not to think simply of the externals of that which goes by the name school system the school board the superintendent and the building the 77 engaging and promotion of teachers etc These things enter in but the fundamental organization is that of the school itself as a community of individuals in its relations to other forms of social life All waste is due to isolation Organization is nothing but getting things into connection with one another so that they work easily flexibly and fully Therefore in speaking of this question of waste in education I desire to call your attention to the isolation of the various parts of the school system to the lack of unity in the aims of education to the lack of coherence in its studies and
