

An illustration featuring a family of four and a teacher. At the top, a father and mother are shown upside down, smiling. The father has a beard and is wearing a blue shirt, while the mother has long black hair and is wearing a green shirt. In the bottom center, a young child with black hair in pigtails is looking up. On the left, a woman with short black hair, wearing a black shirt and a yellow and red striped sash, is holding a red book. On the right, a woman with long black hair, wearing a red shirt and a blue backpack, is holding a black book. The background is a warm orange color with a large white speech bubble in the center containing the title. There are also some decorative elements like a red starburst in the top right and a blue wavy line in the top left.

Schools And Parents Education Matters:

Education Matters James Arthur, Jon Davison, Richard Pring, 2012-02-13 Education Matters draws together a selection of the most influential papers published in the British Journal of Educational Studies by many of the leading scholars in the field over the past sixty years. This unique collection of seminal articles published since the first issue of the Journal provides students and researchers in education with an informed insight and understanding of the nature and development of the field of Educational Studies in the United Kingdom since the Second World War. It also assesses the current position of Educational Studies and explores the possibilities for the development of the field in coming years. Compiled by the Journal's editors past and present James Arthur, Jon Davison and Richard Pring, the book illustrates the development of the field of educational studies and the specially written Introduction contextualises the selection whilst introducing students to the main issues and current thinking in the field. Each of the twenty articles includes a preface which highlights the changing conceptions and development of or consistency in educational thought over time as well as debates and conflicts in the seminal articles by key educational thinkers that have been published in the Journal.

Parental Involvement Across European Education Systems Angelika Paseka, Delma Byrne, 2019-10-08 This book addresses central questions regarding parental involvement across European educational systems, exploring the commonalities and differences across European countries and the extent to which current policy and practice pertaining to parental involvement is inclusive of diversity. Adopting an interdisciplinary approach that draws from the fields of education, sociology and psychology, it presents a description of the policy context and empirical research on critical perspectives relating to parental involvement. Comprising a rich, varied cross-section of national experiences from eleven European countries and the contexts surrounding them, case studies provide insights into parental involvement across Europe and identify challenges in the field. This volume's in-depth approach and comprehensive interrogation of parental involvement across European education systems make it an ideal resource for parents, teachers and academics, researchers and postgraduate students in the fields of education policy and comparative education as well as teacher educators and policy makers.

Schools, Parents and Governors Joan Sallis, 2019-12-09 Originally published in 1988, this book was an up-to-the-minute account of the way in which recent government initiatives, including the 1986 Act, would affect accountability and the quest for greater partnership between schools and parents. It pinpoints the central issues of the current debates at the time in a lucid and highly readable way, asking how public commitment to education can be created and sustained, how minimum standards can be reconciled with local variety and freedom, how choice for parents can be reconciled with equal opportunity for children, how less confident and articulate parents can become involved and how a sense of common purpose can be fostered among the confident minority. The book provided an up-to-date assessment of progress in parental involvement, an account of the recent movement here and overseas and a detailed working guide to the development of school government under the 1986 Act and beyond.

While providing an important critique of the consumerist approach to education the author argues the case illustrated with practical examples for a new approach emphasising partnership mutual accountability better communication more open habits be LEAs and more democratic practices within schools involving staff governors and parents

Diversity And Difference In Early Childhood Education: Issues For Theory And Practice Robinson, Kerry,Jones Diaz, Criss,2005-12-01 Early childhood professionals are often required to work with children and families from a range of diverse backgrounds This book gives an overview of relevant social theories such as post structuralism cultural studies post colonialism feminist perspectives and queer theory Education, U.S. Economic Performance, and the Federal Role United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee,1991 Parenting, Education, and Social Mobility in Rural China Peggy A. Kong,2015-10-30 Like many countries around the world China has been implementing policies aimed at improving parent school relationships However unlike many developed countries the historical context of family school relationships has been limited and parents typically do not participate in the school context Until now there has been little research conducted in rural China on parental involvement in their children s education This book investigates the nature of parental involvement in primary children s education in rural China by using a combination of quantitative and qualitative methods It outlines the layered strategies of how rural parents are involved in their children s schooling showing that rural parents strongly desire educational success for their children and view education as a means to their children gaining social mobility It demonstrates that few rural parents engage in visible forms of parental involvement in their children s schools such as attending parent teacher meetings Rather they are more likely to engage strategies to support their children s education which are largely invisible to schools It adds to the growing body of parental involvement research that suggests that culture location and socio economic status influence different forms of parental involvement and highlights nuances in invisible forms of parental involvement Providing insights into how poor rural parents envision their role with their children schools and the larger society and how these relationships can affect the social mobility of students and families this book will be of huge interest to students and scholars of Asian education comparative and international education and Chinese society Languages matter UNESCO,2025-02-15 Geography, Culture and Education Rod Gerber,M. Williams,2013-04-17 An important challenge for our world is to understand how cultural understanding and geographical education can be linked and used to improve the global society We readily accept that our world is constituted by numerous groups of people who are organised by committees tribes regions nations or continental entities How these groups interact show concern for each others well being and progress is still an unpredictable activity Intercultural tensions racial conflicts and religious clashes have all led to the challenges for enacting a constructive world Fundamental perspectives challenge moderate ones and the resulting tensions produce elements of fear doubt and distrust The extremist views of terrorist groups exaggerate these tensions to the extent that some different cultural groups do not prefer to live in peace with their neighbours Deep seated intercultural tensions predominate over peaceful co existence Such challenges may easily dominate the interaction between racial groups tribes indigenous peoples and colonisers However we know that through the sound practice of intercultural understanding cultural groups in different contexts around the world can interact and co exist successfully and productively In fact they can work together to seek to improve their society This does not mean that one group will dominate the other Rather it means that both groups work together to improve their collective lives

Education has played an important role in the long term achievement of such harmony This volume has been developed to demonstrate that geographical education can be a potent force in the development of cultural understanding in different societies

Parents and Schools (1993) Pamela Munn, 2018-01-12 Published in 1993 this book explores the rights that parents have been given over their children's schooling Parents now have the right to choose the school their children will attend and to be involved with school management These rights and roles for parents as customers and managers are intended to make schools more responsive to parental concerns and to improve school quality This book considers these new roles of parents how they affect traditional notions of home school partnerships and the effect on schools It will appeal to those interested in home school relations in educational governance and in comparing British policy in these areas with that of Europe
