Canadian Islamic Schools Jasmin Zine, 2008-01-01 Based on eighteen months of fieldwork and interviews with forty nine participants Canadian Islamic Schools provides significant insight into the role and function that Islamic schools have in Diasporic Canadian educational and gender related contexts      School and Community Glenn Eastabrook, Michael Fullan, Ontario. Ministry of Education, 1978      Educational Authorities and the Schools Helene Ärlestig, Olof Johansson, 2020-05-28 This book describes and analyses the organisation functions and development of national educational authorities and agencies and the influence they have on local schools in 20 countries around the world It examines the governing chain in the respective countries from both a theoretical and descriptive perspective It does so against the background of the stability and rigour of the governing chains having been challenged with some researchers considering the chain to be broken However the view that comes to the fore in this book is that the chain is still present and contains both vertical implementation structures and intervening spaces for policy interpretation How schools become successful is important for the individual students as well as the local community and the national state A vast quantity of research has looked at what happens in schools and classrooms At the same time national governance and politics as well as local prerequisites are known to exert influence on schools and their results to a high degree Societal priorities problems and traditions provide variety in how governance is executed This book provides an international overview of the similarities and differences between educational agencies and how their work influences schools      How Schools Worked Robert Douglas Gidney, Winnifred Phoebe Joyce Millar, 2012 A richly textured study of educational developments in English speaking Canada from the close of the Victorian Age to the eve of World War II      The Routledge International Handbook of Religious Education Derek Davis, Elena Miroshnikova, 2013-02-01 How and what to teach about religion is controversial in every country The Routledge International Handbook of Religious Education is the first book to comprehensively address the range of ways that major countries around the world teach religion in public and private educational institutions It discusses how three models in particular seem to dominate the landscape Countries with strong cultural traditions focused on a majority religion tend to adopt an identification model where instruction is provided only in the tenets of the majority religion often to the detriment of other religions and their adherents Countries with traditions that differentiate church and state tend to adopt a separation model thus either offering instruction in a wide range of religions or in some cases teaching very little about religion intentionally leaving it to religious institutions and the home setting to provide religious instruction Still other countries attempt managed pluralism in which neither one nor many but rather a limited handful of major religious traditions are taught Inevitably there are countries which do not fit any of these dominant models and the range of methods touched upon in this book will surprise even the most enlightened reader Religious instruction by educational institutions in 53 countries and regions of the world are explored by experts native to each country These chapters discuss Legal parameters in terms of subjective versus objective instruction in religion Constitutional statutory social and political contexts to religious approaches Distinctions between the kinds of instruction permitted in elementary and secondary schools versus what is allowed in institutions of higher learning Regional assessments which provide a welcome overview and comparison This comprehensive and authoritative volume will appeal to educators scholars religious leaders politicians and others interested in how religion and education interface around the world
