most of their time in athletic pursuits riding and chariot driving were favourite amusements But with the Periclean age arose a violent desire for a further course of intellectual study and a system of secondary education arose to occupy the four years which elapsed between the time when the lad finished his primary education and the time when the State summoned him to undergo his two years of military training Many of the primary schools of the better sort started courses of study for lads providing no doubt separate class rooms or else the younger boys attended at different hours from those at which the elder pupils assembled Probably some such provision had been made much earlier for those who wished to obtain a more advanced knowledge of literature and music than was offered by the primary schools But in the time of Sokrates many masters seemed to have held classes for lads as well as for boys On entering the schools of Dionusios 1 the master of letters Sokrates finds a class of lads assembled here 2 They all belong to noble families the poor were no doubt unable to afford education of this sort Two of the lads were busy discussing a point of astronomy and were quoting the Schools of Hellas; an Essay on the Practice and Theory of Ancient Greek Education From 600 to 300 B. Schools of Hellas Kenneth J. Freeman,1969 Schools of Hellas Kenneth J. Freeman,2018-03-23 Excerpt from Schools of Hellas An Essay on the Practice and Theory of Ancient Greek Education From to 600 to 300 B C The subject is in One respect specially appropriate to a youthful hand Perhaps at no time is a man more likely to have fresh and living impressions about education than when he has himself just ceased to be a pupil when he has just completed the subordinate stages Of a long and strenuous self culture It will be seen in more than one place that the author is not content with the purely historical aspect Of his theme but suggests criticisms and even practical applications It may be thought that these remarks upon a matter of pressing and growing importance are by no means the less deserving Of consideration because the writer when he speaks of the schoolboy and the undergraduate is unquestionably an authentic witness But as I have already said the work will commend itself sufficiently to those interested in the topic if only as a conspectus Of facts presented with orderly arrange ment and in a simple and perspicuous style It is not my part here to express personal feelings But I cannot dismiss this the first and only fruit of the classical studies Of Kenneth Freeman without a word Of profound sorrow for the premature loss Of a most honourable heart and Vigorous mind He was one whom a teacher may freely praise without suspicion Of partiality for whatever he was he was no mere pro duct Of lessons as this his first essay will sufficiently show It is not what he would have made it but it is his own and it is worthy Of him About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www forgottenbooks com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Schools of Hellas an Essay on the Practice and Theory of Ancient Greek Education from 600 to 300 B C - Scholar's Choice Edition Kenneth J.
