School's Out Lewis J. Perelman,1993 Handbook of Research on Educational Communications and Technology David H. Jonassen,2004 This edition of this handbook updates and expands its review of the research theory issues and methodology that constitute the field of educational communications and technology Organized into seven sectors it profiles and integrates the following elements of this rapidly changing field Handbook of Research for Educational Communications and Technology David Jonassen,Marcy Driscoll,2003-12-08 First Published in 2008 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Schools and Schooling in the Digital Age Neil Selwyn,2010-10-07 This book presents a wide ranging and critical exploration of a topic that lies at the heart of contemporary education The use of digital technology is now a key feature of schools and schooling around the world Yet despite its prominence technology use continues to be an area of education that rarely receives sustained critical attention and thought especially from those people who are most involved and affected by it Technology tends to be something that many teachers learners parents policy makers and even academics approach as a routine rather than reflective matter Tackling the wider picture addressing the social cultural economic political and commercial aspects of schools and schooling in the digital age this book offers to make sense of what happens and what does not happen when the digital and the educational come together in the guise of schools technology In particular the book examines contemporary schooling in terms of social justice equality and participatory democracy Seeking to re politicise an increasingly depoliticised area of educational debate and analysis setting out to challenge the many contradictions that characterise the field of education technology today the author concludes by suggesting what forms schools and schooling in the digital age could and should take This is the perfect volume for anyone interested in the application and use of technology in education as well as the education policy and politics that surround it many will also find its innovative proposals for technology use an inspiration for their own teaching and learning The Great American Education-Industrial Complex Anthony G. Picciano,Joel Spring,2013-05-07 The Great American Education Industrial Complex examines the structure and nature of national networks and enterprises that seek to influence public education policy in accord with their own goals and objectives In the past twenty years significant changes have taken place in the way various interest groups seek to influence policies and practices in public education in the United States No longer left to the experience and knowledge of educators American education has become as much the domain of private organizations corporate entities and political agents who see it as a market for their ideas technologies and ultimately profits Picciano and Spring posit that educational technology is the vehicle whereby these separate movements organizations and individuals have become integrated in a powerful common entity and detail how the educational industrial complex has grown and strengthened its position of influence This timely carefully documented well argued book brings together Picciano s perspective and expertise in the field of technology and policy issues and Spring s in the history and politics of education in a unique critical analysis of the education industrial complex and its implications for the future Recapturing

Technology for Education Mark Gura, Bernard Percy, 2005-01-17 Despite significant investment of funds time and effort in bringing computers the Internet and related technologies into our classrooms educators have turned their back on these new power tools of the intellect School is the last remaining institution to keep 21st Century technology at arms distance How can technology be used to enrich and enhance traditional approaches to instruction How does it move teaching into new territory What actions need to be taken in order to successfully transform our schools to effective technology supported learning environments Why has this happened and what can be done to reverse it Recapturing Technology for Education answers these questions It re establishes the legitimacy and urgency of tapping technology to make our schools relevant and effective once again This book explores the reasons why educators have resisted making the leap to a technology supported brand of teaching and learning and it will provide an education worthy of 21st Century children Includes Interviews and quotes of experts in the field References reviews and recommendations of free resources available to educators Written for both education professionals and lay persons it will also be useful to all who are interested in understanding Instructional Technology and unleashing its potential to positively impact Schools and Screens Victoria Cain, 2024-02-06 Why screens in schools from film screenings to instructional television to personal computers did not bring about the educational revolution promised by reformers Long before Chromebook giveaways and remote learning screen media technologies were enthusiastically promoted by American education reformers Again and again as schools deployed film screenings television programs and computer games screen based learning was touted as a cure for all educational ills But the transformation promised by advocates for screens in schools never happened In this book Victoria Cain chronicles important episodes in the history of educational technology as reformers technocrats public television producers and computer scientists tried to harness the power of screen based media to shape successive generations of students Cain describes how beginning in the 1930s champions of educational technology saw screens in schools as essential tools for training citizens and presented films to that end Among the films screened for educational purposes was the notoriously racist Birth of a Nation In the 1950s and 1960s both technocrats and leftist educators turned to screens to prepare young Americans for Cold War citizenship and from the 1970s through the 1990s as commercial television and personal computers arrived in classrooms screens in schools represented an increasingly privatized vision of schooling and civic engagement Cain argues that the story of screens in schools is not simply about efforts to develop the right technological tools rather it reflects ongoing tensions over citizenship racial politics private funding and distrust of teachers Ultimately she shows that the technologies that reformers had envisioned as improving education and training students in civic participation in fact deepened educational inequities Fix Schools First Jack E. Bowsher, 2001 An educator working with big corporations Bowsher argues that schools damage children that poverty minorities and low parental involvement are the result rather than the cause of poor student learning that appropriate responsibilities need to be established for teachers and administrators and Learning for Uncertainty G. Williamson McDiarmid, Yong Zhao, 2022-01-31 Learning for Uncertainty explores technology's role in education specifically unpacking the question How should educators prepare today's children for a world that has yet to be made As technology evolves faster than our capacity to fully understand the social cultural economic and moral implications of many innovations today's educators are tasked with the unique role of preparing students to capitalize on technology's opportunities and also mitigate its dangers to their society to democratic processes and to institutions Veteran educators McDiarmid and Zhao explore the implications of emerging technologies for future jobs organizations students and learning covering topics such as The future of work and workers as technology eliminates some industries while creating new ones Potential futures both bright and dark awaiting students The qualities dispositions social behaviors and skills that are likely to advantage students in the future The possibility of technology to revolutionize education in ways that will better position students for an uncertain future How technology can free teachers from time and effort devoted to routine matters to instead assuming roles that are potentially more satisfying and supportive of their students learning Learning opportunities and educator roles that have the potential to bring about needed changes Capitalizing on these uncertain times to rethink curriculum pedagogy opportunities to learn and the organization of school as well as the roles of students educators parents and policymakers This latest book in the Routledge Leading Change series is ideal reading for educators and policymakers in both P 12 and higher education interested in ensuring our education systems provide the experiences and learning opportunities necessary to cultivate the innovative iconoclastic and generative thinkers and creators needed for a future that nourishes the minds bodies and spirits of all
