Older adults represent the most rapidly growing demographic in the U S and in many developed countries around the world The field of geriatric medicine is still relatively young and is only recently seeing a significant increase in peer reviewed literature Medicare and Medicaid expenditures related to older adults are nearly a trillion dollars year in the US How our healthcare system cares for older adults and how those older adults navigate an increasingly complex system is of the utmost importance According to the Institute of Medicine physicians and other healthcare professionals receive an inadequate amount of training in geriatric medicine Geriatric medicine is based on the concept of delivering person centered care with a focus on function and quality of life It is essential that physicians nurse practitioners physician assistants pharmacists social workers and other health care professionals all be knowledgeable about the geriatric approach to care Geriatric medicine varies from most other fields in medicine While many specialties function on the basis of evidence based literature geriatricians and other clinicians caring for older adults must integrate relatively limited evidence with variable physiological changes and complex psychosocial determinants Geriatricians are used to caring for 90 year olds with multiple chronic illnesses Their variable physiology leads to uncertain responses to pharmacotherapy and their personal goals and wishes need to be incorporated into any plan of care Practicing geriatric medicine requires the ability to see patterns But it goes one step further as the rules are constantly in flux Every patient is an individual with particular needs and goals In order to provide true person centered care to older adults one has to incorporate these factors into the decision making process The proposed handbook is designed to present a comprehensive and state of the art update that incorporates existing literature with clinical experience Basic science and the physiology of aging create a background but are not the main focus This is because every chapter has been written through the lens of person centered care This book is about focusing on what matters to the person and how that is not always about pathology and physiology The reader generally will not find simple solutions to symptoms diseases and syndromes In fact the key to caring for geriatric patients is the ability to think both critically and divergently at the same time Geriatrics encompasses multiple disciplines and spans all of the subspecialties It requires knowledge of working within an interdisciplinary team It requires an appreciation of how quality of life varies with each individual and creates treatment and care plans that also vary And most of all it requires a firm commitment to first learning who the person is so that all of the necessary data can be analyzed and integrated into a true person centered plan of care This book aims to serve as an unparalleled resource for meeting these challenges Updated and revised from the previous edition this text features over 40 new peer reviewed chapters new references and a wide array of useful new tools that are updated on a regular basis by interdisciplinary and interprofessional experts in geriatric medicine as it would any other area of educational research      An Evaluation of the Veterans Administration's Geriatric Research, Education, and Clinical Centers Charles Fountaine, 1986      Old Age, New Science Hyung Wook Park, 2016-03-09 Between 1870 and 1940 life expectancy in the United States skyrocketed while the percentage of senior citizens age sixty five and older more than doubled a phenomenon owed largely to innovations in medicine and public health At the same time the Great Depression was a major tipping point for age discrimination and poverty in the West seniors were living longer and retiring earlier but without adequate means to support themselves and their families The economic disaster of the 1930s alerted scientists who were actively researching the processes of aging to the profound social implications of their work and by the end of the 1950s the field of gerontology emerged Old Age New Science explores how a group of American and British life scientists contributed to gerontology's development as a multidisciplinary field It examines the foundational biosocial visions they shared a byproduct of both their research and the social problems they encountered Hyung Wook Park shows how these visions shaped popular discourses on aging directly influenced the institutionalization of gerontology and also reflected the class gender and race biases of their founders      The SAGE Handbook of Social Gerontology Dale Dannefer, Chris Phillipson, 2010-08-13 This SAGE Handbook integrates basic research on social dimensions of aging It presents programmatic applications of research in areas not often seen in Handbooks including imprisonment technology and aging urban society aged and elderly migration The authors constitute a Who's Who of international gerontology and the focus on globalization and aging is unique among Handbooks today This Handbook should be in the library of every social gerontologist Vern L Bengtson Professor of Gerontology University of Southern California This volume reflects the emergence of ageing as a global concern including chapters by international scholars from Asia Australasia Europe and North America It provides a comprehensive overview of key trends and issues in the field drawing upon the full range of social science disciplines The Handbook is organized into five parts each exploring different aspects of research into social aspects of ageing Disciplinary overviews summaries of findings from key disciplinary areas within social gerontology Social relationships and social differences explores area like social inequality gender religion inter generational ties social networks and friendships Individual characteristics and change in later life examines different aspects of individual aging including self and identity cognitive processes and bio social interactions and their impact on physical and psychological aging Comparative perspectives and cultural innovations topics include ageing and development ageing in a global context migration and cross cultural perspectives on grandparenthood Policy issues covering policy concerns such as long term care technology and older people end of life issues work and retirement and the politics of old age This will be essential reading for all students researchers and policy makers concerned with the major issues influencing the lives of older people across the globe
