McCarthy, 2006-01-01 This book is about intersections among science philosophy and literature It bridges the gap between the traditional cultures of science and the humanities by constituting an area of interaction that some have called a third culture By asking questions about three disciplines rather than about just two as is customary in research this inquiry breaks new ground and resists easy categorization It seeks to answer the following questions What impact has the remapping of reality in scientific terms since the Copernican Revolution through thermodynamics relativity theory and quantum mechanics had on the way writers and thinkers conceptualized the place of human culture within the total economy of existence What influence on the other hand have writers and philosophers had on the doing of science and on scientific paradigms of the world Thirdly where does humankind fit into the total picture with its uniquely moral nature In other words rather than privileging one discipline over another this study seeks to uncover a common ground for science ethics and literary creativity Throughout this inquiry certain nodal points emerge to bond the argument cogently together and create new meaning These anchor points are the notion of movement inherent in all forms of existence the changing concepts of evil in the altered spaces of reality and the creative impulse critical to the literary work of art as well as to the expanding universe This ambitious undertaking is unified through its use of phenomena typical of chaos and complexity theory as so many leitmotifs While they first emerged to explain natural phenomena at the quantum and cosmic levels chaos and complexity are equally apt for explaining moral and aesthetic events Hence the title Remapping Reality extends to the reconfigurations of the three main spheres of human interaction the physical the ethical and the aesthetic or creative ABA Journal , 1983-03 The ABA Journal serves the legal profession Qualified recipients are lawyers and judges law students law librarians and associate members of the American Bar Association The Scientific Process S.D. must be made concerning the nature and purpose of this study What I have attempted here is an essay in the metaphysics of science and not the philosophy of science Rather than concentrating on the details of theory construction and the formal structure of scientific systems I have treated science as an enterprise a developing process within human experience I have used such an approach in order to analyze science in its relationship to other human enterprises such as art and philosophy and to clarify its unique goals and characteristics Often the concepts employed in descriptions of scientific methods are conceived too narrowly by broadening the focus of attention I have attempted to characterize in a fairly general fashion the goals and methods of science This has led to formulations which may seem at first glance to depart radically from some well established distinctions of the philosophy of science I hope that it will be clear however that such formulations arise at a different level of analysis and concern very different problems from those of the logic of science In particular I am concerned with the general goals of science These must not be confused with the narrower principles of method employed in science at
