The Lost Human and the Real End of History George Yerby, 2025-07-01 This book analyses the transformation in 16th and 17th century English economic life that overturned the traditional restraints of the medieval economy for the commercial ethos that governs the modern world and the resulting imbalance which opened the way to the environmental breakdown of today On the open fields and commons the smallholders had worked closely with the land as given with minimal intervention in natural processes The 16th century introduced a fundamental difference of approach as the inducement of exceptional profits encouraged manipulative exploitation of the land Freedom of trade from arbitrary restraints and impositions became the new economic ethos officially established by the mid 17th century revolution and reinforced by other changes such as the emergence of the nationstate The rise of science was associated with the agriculturalist adoption of empirical method for improvement and a new philosophy accorded humankind the right to degrade other species for its own ends By focusing on the causes and effects of capitalism at its first appearance this volume traces the environmental crisis back to the switch from an essentially universalist to a basically individualist world This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Early Modern England Economic Studies and Environmental Studies
