

Aesthetics scrutinizes the nature of taste, art, and beauty with the creation and appreciation of beauty. Aesthetic judgment was defined by Kant as judgment founded on a feeling. Aesthetic experience is defined as a psychological process whereby the attention is concentrated on the object as all other concerns, daily concerns and objects are suppressed (Marković, 2012). Aesthetic judgment is thus related to aesthetic experience as people have different opinions and judgments on what is beautiful or ugly. People form aesthetic judgments on the qualities of objects founded on the sensory contents of experience. Aesthetic judgment is as well founded on past aesthetics experience. Furthermore, aesthetic judgment is as well related to aesthetic experience in that Aesthetic judgment is the opinion of people about experience and with what experience is about. Therefore, aesthetical judgment means to reflect on one's aesthetic values onto the objectified human (Suojanen, 2016). The emotion state and focus of mind of a person on one object is as well a good predictor of aesthetic judgment in which positive judgments are made under conditions of positive mood. Therefore, when aesthetic experiences are positive, it is normally expected that there will a positive impact on attitude, processing and thus positive aesthetic judgment.

A study in Taine's method* Sholom Kahn, 1953 Nature and Nurture in French Social Sciences, 1859-1914 and Beyond Martin S. Staum, 2011-10-07 The prevailing assumption has been that French ethnographers highlighted the cultural and social environment while anthropologists emphasized the scientific study of head and body shapes Martin Staum shows that the temptation to gravitate towards one pole of the nature nurture continuum often resulted in reluctant concessions to the other side Psychologists Thodule Ribot and Alfred Binet for example were forced to recognize the importance of social factors Non Durkheimian sociologists were divided on the issue of race and gender as progressive and tolerant attitudes on race did not necessarily correlate with flexible attitudes on gender Recognizing this allows Staum to raise questions about the theory of the equivalence of all marginalized groups Anthropological institutions re organized before the First World War sometimes showed decreasing confidence in racial theory but failed to abandon it completely Staum's chilling epilogue discusses how the persistent legacy of such theories was used by extremist anthropologists outside the mainstream to deploy racial ideology as a basis of persecution in the Vichy era
