Science as Social Knowledge Helen E. Longino, 2020-03-31 Conventional wisdom has it that the sciences properly pursued constitute a pure value free method of obtaining knowledge about the natural world In light of the social and normative dimensions of many scientific debates Helen Longino finds that general accounts of scientific methodology cannot support this common belief Focusing on the notion of evidence the author argues that a methodology powerful enough to account for theories of any scope and depth is incapable of ruling out the influence of social and cultural values in the very structuring of knowledge The objectivity of scientific inquiry can nevertheless be maintained she proposes by understanding scientific inquiry as a social rather than an individual process Seeking to open a dialogue between methodologists and social critics of the sciences Longino develops this concept of contextual empiricism in an analysis of research programs that have drawn criticism from feminists Examining theories of human evolution and of prenatal hormonal determination of gender role behavior of sex differences in cognition and of sexual orientation the author shows how assumptions laden with social values affect the description presentation and interpretation of data In particular Longino argues that research on the hormonal basis of sex differentiated behavior involves assumptions not only about gender relations but also about human action and agency She concludes with a discussion of the relation between science values and ideology based on the work of Habermas Foucault Keller and Haraway

Resources in Education ,1994 Principles of Environmental Sciences Jan J. Boersema,Lucas Reijnders,2008-12-12 International experts provide a comprehensive picture of the principles concepts and methods that are applicable to problems originating from the interaction between the living non living environment and mankind Both the analysis of such problems and the way solutions to environmental problems may work in specific societal contexts are addressed Disciplinary approaches are discussed but there is a focus on multi and interdisciplinary methods A large number of practical examples and case studies are presented There is special emphasis on modelling and integrated assessment This book is different because it stresses the societal cultural and historical dimensions of environmental problems The main objective is to improve the ability to analyse and conceptualise environmental problems in context and to make readers aware of the value and scope of different methods Ideal as a course text for students this book will also be of interest to researchers and consultants in the environmental sciences

Economics as an Empirical Social Science Daniel Weißbrodt,2024-07-08 Economics still adheres entirely unreflectively to a mechanistic worldview and machine thinking Epistemologically it thus remains in the 19th century and its assumptions and theories methods and models therefore stand in stark contradiction to the findings of all other social and natural sciences as well as a multitude of empirical facts Through a discourse analytical examination of sixteen basic concepts in economics based on twelve standard economics textbooks their ideahistorical origin and use are worked out and compared and related to the current state of knowledge of other disciplines This reveals the structural methodological and content errors of economics in a clear manner Especially for critical students who have long been demanding an economics that is in line with the current state of research and faces the challenges of the 21st century this opens up the possibility of a new approach to economics The Content Discourse analytical examination of fundamental assumptions and concepts of economics from labor to wealth Structural methodological and content critique of economic thinking from an epistemological perspective Critical examination of the use of empirical and statistical data the method of gaining knowledge and the model thinking in economics questions on social science thus affecting the proper development of social science Max Weber once said that the most important function of social science in modern times is to keep people clear headed and to resist the delusions of prophetic legislators Humanities and arts are the process of perceiving realizing thinking manipulating and expressing objective or subjective objects through capturing and excavating feeling and analyzing integrating and applying or displaying the stage results in the form obtained through feeling seeing hearing smelling touching The social sciences and humanities and arts contain content that will directly affect our lives and the way society functions And by reacting to today s increasingly intricate problems and situations through systematic and professional discussions they will further contribute to the improvement of institutions and the development of society By thinking about issues and looking at problems and the world from different perspectives by putting the two together it may be possible to have more comprehensive appropriate and better responses for example the development of laws requires a deeper understanding of the environment in which they are implemented international trade requires a certain understanding of the customs of different countries and the development of tax and economic policies requires a certain understanding of the population consumer demand etc Research in Education ,1968 Science, Public Policy and the Scientist Administrator National Institutes of Health (U.S.).
