Making The Difference Schools Families And Social Division:

Making the Difference, 1982 Making the Difference Raewyn Connell, 1982 Making the Difference Dean Ashenden, RW Connell, 2020-07-29 First published in 1982 Making the Difference has become a classic in the study of education and of Australian society Hailed on publication as certainly the most interesting book written about Australian schools in a very long time and arguably the most important it has since been recognised as one of the 10 most influential works of Australian sociology not just a major argument and a classic point of reference but an event an intervention in ways of doing research and speaking to practice a methodology a textual style it was designed to be read by a much wider audience than the standard sociological text and it has succeeded Making the Difference draws on a detailed study of the schools and homes of the powerful and the wealthy and of ordinary wage earners It allows children parents and teachers to speak for themselves and from what they say it develops strikingly new ways of understanding educational inequality of how the class and gender systems work and of schools and their social roles Equality of opportunity co education and relevant and meaningful curriculum are all questioned sympathetically but incisively Ranging across educational policy from system level to the everyday experience of kids and teachers from the problems of schooling to the production of class and gender relations this path breaking combination of theory research and politics remains engaging thought provoking and relevant

Sociological Theory and Educational Reality Alan Barcan, 1993 An examination of the major classical sociological theories relevant to education and of the rise and decline of the new sociology of education Author also discusses the vexed questions of equality of opportunity the relationship between school and society the growth of educational bureaucracies and the roles of state church and family in education in Australia since 1949 Includes endnotes tables and index What Schools Can Do Kathleen Weiler, Candace Mitchell, 1992-01-01 This book is organized around three themes mechanisms of domination and control pedagogies of possibility and theory as critique It links education with an analysis of politics and economics and takes as central the possibilities of schools as places where social critique and the empowerment of students can take place The authors have considered the possibilities of student resistance and curriculum transformation and have deepened their critiques to incorporate recent theoretical analyses influenced by feminist critiques anti racist approaches and postmodernist thought In moving from theoretical analysis to practical examples of curriculum transformation and classroom practice What Schools Can Do provides both a foundation for the analysis of schooling and alternatives for teaching practice

Challenging Dominant Views on Student Behaviour at School Anna Sullivan, Bruce Johnson, Bill Lucas, 2016-05-20 This is a deliberately provocative book It critiques current student behaviour management practices seeks to explain the flawed assumptions that justify those practices and proposes how things could be better for children in our schools if different practices were adopted It is one of the few books to offer alternative ways of addressing the issues associated with student behaviour at school and exposes the field to serious and sustained critique from both a research perspective and a children s rights ideological stance The authors address the following questions What ideas dominate current thinking on student behaviour at school What are the policy drivers for current practices What is wrong with common behaviour approaches What key ideologies justify these approaches How can we present ethical alternatives to current approaches How can a human rights perspective contribute to the development of alternative approaches In exploring these questions and some ethical alternatives to the status quo the authors suggest practical ways to answer back to calls for more authoritarian responses to student behaviour within our schools In doing so the authors advocate for reforms on behalf of children and in their interests

Schooling, Welfare and Parental Responsibility Michael G. Wyness, 2025-08-05 In the 1990s issues of child protection child abuse and delinquency had generated public and academic concerns over the ability of adults to underwrite the physical moral and social welfare of children At the same time recent educational reform had provoked debate around the shifting balance of power between those most involved in child development parents and teachers Originally published in 1996 Schooling Welfare and Parental Responsibility brings these two agenda together within a coherent theoretical framework and offers an empirical analysis grounded in perspectives of both parents and teachers The book draws on recent British European and North American research and provides the reader with an up to date account of the current state of affairs between parents and teachers at the time Within a context of recent educational and social policy reform and drawing on interview material from parents and teachers the author examines the common understandings of the concept of parental responsibility Debates on sex education the interventionist welfare state and the state of parental anxiety are explored through the accounts provided Schooling Welfare and Parental Responsibility is an eminently readable synthesis of theory policy and empirical data and today can be read by students teachers and welfare practitioners in its historical context

Getting To Know Schools In A Democracy Helen Simons, 2013-10-28 First published in 1987 The central concept of the book is that of democratic evaluation one of the most influential ideas in the development of education practice in this country since professional evaluation emerged in the 1960s The question explored through an examination of the theory and practice of democratic evaluation is whether it is possible to both posit and practice an approach to evaluation that provides an effective curb on the derivatisation and centralisation of information for educational decision making The book documents the emergence of politically conscious evaluation in this country and through two detailed cases explores the strengths and weaknesses of democratic theory in practice Issues concerning the rights obligations and freedoms of evaluators in the conduct and dissemination of evaluations are discussed

Resisting Educational Inequality Susanne Gannon, Robert Hattam, Wayne Sawyer, 2018-06-12 Resisting Educational Inequality examines poverty social exclusion and vulnerability in educational contexts at a time of rising inequality and when policy research suggests that such issues are being ignored or distorted within neoliberal logics In this volume leading scholars from Australia and across the UK examine these issues through three main focus areas Mapping the damage what are our explanations for the persistent nature of educational inequality Resources for hope what do we know about how educational engagement and success can be improved in schools serving vulnerable communities Sustaining hope how might we reframe research policy and practice in the future Using a range of theories and methodologies including empirical and theory building work as well as policy critique this book opens innovative areas of thinking about the social issues surrounding educational practice and policy By exploring different explanations and approaches to school change and considering how research policy and practice might be reframed this book moves systematically and insightfully through damage towards hope In combining pedagogy policy and experience Resisting Educational Inequality will be a valuable resource for all researchers and students policymakers and education practitioners
