Democracy and Development R.C. Bhardwaj,K. Vijayakrishnan,2018-10-26 Published in 1998 The question of whether democracy and development are allies or adversaries has long been debated and with the triumph of the democratic spirit worldwide the relationship between democracy and development has once again come to attract much attention globally The collapse of the Soviet Union and the developments in Eastern Europe led to considerable rethinking in political circles on the efficacy of the economic policies pursued in those countries and the long term viability of political systems prevalent there Elsewhere several newly industrialized countries are striving to consolidate their gains though there are differing perceptions of whether their politics conform to the classical framework of democracy or not In a remarkable turn around some other countries have initiated measures for economic reforms and structural adjustment setting aside their earlier approaches towards economic management In short the last decades of this millennium have witnessed meaningful efforts worldwide on forging a new partnership between democracy and development In February 1996 the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association jointly organized a conference entitled Parliamentary Democracy and Development Allies or Adversaries with the Wilton Park an international agency of the British Commonwealth and Foreign Office in Wilton House West Sussex United Kingdom The week long conference brought together parliamentarians diplomats administrators political scientists economists and specialists from all over the world The participants shared their views and experiences on diverse aspects of the main theme This publication presents an essentially parliamentary perspective on the correlation between democracy and development based on the discussions at the Wilton Park conference and in the light of current thinking on the subject matter

Comrades, Clients and Cousins Gerhard Seibert, 2006-05-01 Colonized in the late 15th century So Tom and Principe were ruled by Portugal for 500 years one of the longest periods of European domination in colonial history In fact during this period the Portuguese colonized the islands twice Both colonizations were driven by the production of tropical cash crops however they occurred under rather different circumstances Its long history as a plantation colony has made this African archipelago in many aspects more akin to the small Caribbean states Since its decolonization in 1975 the small and impoverished country has experienced two fundamental changes to its political and economic system in a short period of 15 years After embracing socialism and a centralized economy at independence in 1990 the country introduced liberal democracy and a free market economy This case study analyses the course of political and economic changes in postcolonial So Tom and Principe The central issue of the book is to which extent institutional changes based on external models altered local patterns of political culture and of doing politics In addition it examines the outcome of the consecutive economic policies and development approaches patterned on these models This second edition has been completely revised and updated for the period of 1998 2005 including the recent developments in the country's emerging oil sector Grenada And Soviet/Cuban Policy Jiri Valenta, 2019-03-05 The turmoil in the Caribbean and Central America does not have a single cause it results from both indigenous factors and outside intervention Some liberals see revolution as the result of poverty and injustice and ignore the East West security dimensions of the problem the role of Leninist ideology and the actions of the Soviet Union and its allies Twentieth-Century Suriname Rosemarijn Höfte, Peter Meel, 2022-07-04 Suriname is a fascinating yet also little known Caribbean country Fascinating because a unique variety of lifestyles and group identities has characterized this country from its early beginnings as a European plantation colony but even more so since the influx of contract laborers from British India and Java in the nineteenth century Little known because even when attention was focused on the country particularly following a military coup d'état in 1980 this awareness has contributed little to a better understanding of the country's complex developments In fact the media have not unveiled but rather covered the essentials of the evolving Suriname society Combining a broad thematic approach with a focus on long term developments in Suriname 20th Century Suriname consists of fourteen chapters that discuss the main trends with respect to major areas of research Topics such as Surinamese politics and economics as well as its social religious and cultural aspects are covered by the best contemporary specialists on Suriname in the United States the Netherlands and Suriname This volume provides an accessible introduction to Suriname for a general audience including graduate and undergraduate students and an authoritative state of the art review for Suriname specialists The Empowering Impulse Glenford D. Howe, Don D. Marshall, 2001 The book makes available data on the Barbadian nationalist enterprise with the hope that it will stimulate more research by other historians social scientists and social commentators on the issues addressed in the work The Politics of Labour and Development in Trinidad Ray Kiely, 1996 This thesis is a labour history of Trinidad and Tobago concentrating on the period from 1937 to 1990 The study attempts to show that there is not a unified or homogenous working class and for this reason both traditional Marxist and industrial relations theories are rejected Instead the history of labour focuses on how the working classes have been divided by factors such as race gender class structure and politics These divisions are used as an explanation for the absence of a popular socialist party in the country It concludes that the economic recession of the 1980s has led to the worst crisis in the history of the labour movement but at the same time this has laid the framework for a new strategy of social movement unionism which attempts to constructively engage with rather than ignore divisions within the working classes The main sources of data were documentary and archival material and in particular reports made by the British TUC and Colonial Office industrial relations legislation and trade union and political party documents and manifestoes For the contemporary period these sources of data were supplemented by fifteen interviews with leading figures in trade union and labour politics The work is based on a macro approach to the study of labour and as such constitutes a new and original approach to the study of labour in Trinidad and Tobago In addition more contemporary trade union documents and interviews provided the researcher with new and original material
