Women of Color and the Multicultural Curriculum Liza Fiol-Matta, Mariam Chamberlain, 1994. A A A The product of 13 curriculum projects that involved several hundred educators nationwide, this volume provides faculty and administrators with a guide to multicultural curricular change, especially with respect to women. While women represent over half of the college students on campus, they are still represented only minimally in the allegedly mainstream curriculum. Women of color are far less visible in the curriculum than white women. A A A Both the process and the results of a Ford Foundation-funded project are presented here in a format that allows browsing and promotes reading straight through. The volume is divided into three major sections, the first of which highlights the actual process of faculty transformation and administrative support essential to curricular changes as it occurred on two of the participating campuses: U C L A and George Washington University. Extensive multidisciplinary faculty development syllabi are provided. A A A Section Two contains 37 transformed undergraduate course syllabi for courses in sociology, American history, and literature, and more with brief essays describing professors' encounters with teaching the new texts. Section Three is an invaluable interdisciplinary guide to teaching about Puerto Rican women, prepared by a team of scholars at SUNY Albany. It provided information about Puerto Rican women inside and outside Puerto Rico, as well as teaching strategies for integrating such information into the traditional curriculum. A A A This volume shows that essential educational change to meet the diversity of U S students may be somewhat slower than one would wish, and more difficult, but it is complex, challenging, and intellectually exciting.

Strangers to Relatives Sergei Kan, 2001-01-01 Strangers to Relatives is an intimate and illuminating look at a typical but misunderstood part of anthropological fieldwork in North America the adoption and naming of anthropologists by Native families and communities Adoption and naming have long been a common way for Native peoples in Canada and the United States to deal with strangers who are not enemies For over a century adoption and naming have also served as an important means for many Native American and First Nation communities to become connected to the anthropologists visiting and writing about them In this outstanding volume leading anthropologists in the United States and Canada discuss this issue by focusing on the cases of such prominent earlier scholars as Lewis Henry Morgan and Franz Boas They also share personal experiences of adoption and naming and offer a range of stimulating perspectives on the significance of these practices in the past and today The contributors explore the impact of adoption and naming upon the relationship between scholar and Native community considering in particular two key issues How does adoption affect the fieldwork and subsequent interpretations by anthropologists and in turn how are Native individuals and communities themselves affected by adopting an outside scholar whose aim is to learn and write about them Strangers to Relatives not only sheds valuable light on how anthropology fieldwork is conducted but also makes a seminal contribution to our understanding of the ongoing often troubled relationship between the academy and Native communities
