remember Ginty affectionately while others feared her volatile temper or refused to step into her house for fear of being served chicken poop tea She had an open door policy to all of her animals the chickens would sleep with her and the bedroom doubled as a maternity ward for dogs cats goats and sheep Intrigued by the stories Czajkowski tracks down a pile of Ginty's letters and documents These combined with many fond bitter and bizarre anecdotes gleaned from interviews with area residents are all woven into the account As Czajkowski chronicles the many challenges of settling into her new home it becomes clear that she and Ginty have more than just a piece of land in common They also share a spirit of independence and resourcefulness as well as an unwavering desire for a solitary life immersed in the spectacular landscapes of British Columbia
