Young, 1995 As one of the most successful farm organizations in the United States the Missouri Farmers Association brought together farm clubs from all over the state to serve as the central body through which farmer owned businesses could compete with investor owned businesses In Cultivating Cooperation Raymond A Young follows the fascinating history of MFA from its grass roots beginning in a schoolhouse in 1914 through the upheaval that led to only the second leadership change in the organization's history in 1979 William Hirth was responsible for the early success of MFA At the age of fifteen Hirth became interested in farming and started lecturing on the benefits of building a cooperative of farm clubs He continued to advocate this idea by publishing The Missouri Farmer a magazine that informed subscribers on legislative issues and farm club news and later became MFA's house organ Hirth believed that the farm clubs should capitalize not only on the economic advantages of joining together as a cooperative but on the political and social advantages as well Upon Hirth's death in 1940 Fred Heinkel took over leadership of MFA Under his guidance the cooperative grew at a feverish rate Supply companies such as oil refineries feed mills and seed plants were acquired or built whenever it proved advantageous to the farmers A sister cooperative was created to expand into neighboring states and a national alliance was created to establish a stronger representation in Washington D C MFA was also instrumental in securing a four year medical school in its hometown of Columbia in order to ensure medical care for farmers and their families in rural areas
