Rockin In Red Square Critical Approaches To International Education In The Age Of Cyberculture:

Rockin' in Red Square Walter Grünzweig, Nana Rinehart, 2002 International educators can take the high road towards rigorous investment in the ideals of true cultural exchange or continue down the low road to customer satisfaction and design programs that reduce or eliminate challenges International education structured according to the latter principle is little more than just another product in the global marketplace In spite of the process of globalization and partly because of it international education faces a major crisis This volume with contributors from Austria Chile France Germany The Netherlands and the United States sets forth a timely and provocative critique of international education and assesses its future under radically different conditions than those in place twenty years ago Walter Grünzweig is professor of American literature and culture at Universität Dortmund He holds adjunct professorships at the University of Pennsylvania University of New York at Binghamton and Canisius College Nana Rinehart is associate director of the International Student Exchange Program

People-Centered Approaches Toward the Internationalization of Higher Education Malfatti, Gabrielle, 2020-08-14 Traditionally internationalization efforts in higher education have been rooted in neo liberal transactional models that restrict or compromise the space for meaningful exchanges of socio cultural capital Recently researchers and practitioners in the international education field have taken issue with programming and practices in education abroad international student recruitment and internationalization of the curricula that perpetuate systems of imbalance fossilize prejudices adversely impact host communities abroad and limit student learning to the confines of the Western epistemological traditions As a result scholars and practitioners are creating new paradigms for engagement and exchange People Centered Approaches Toward the Internationalization of Higher Education is an essential scholarly publication that examines the praxis of internationalization in higher education with empirical research and relevant models of practice that approach the topic critically and responsibly The book innovates and re humanizes internationalization efforts including education abroad international recruitment international scholar and student services and internationalization of curriculum by focusing on the people and communities touched intentionally and unintentionally by said efforts It is ideal for higher education faculty education professionals academic advisors academicians administrators curriculum designers researchers and students

Internationalization within Higher Education Elizabeth Stigger, Marian Wang, David Laurence, Anna Bordilovskaya, 2018-03-13 This book discusses what internationalization practices are and the different ways that they are being implemented by higher education institutions in Japan from a bottom up perspective It reflects the current situation faced by many Japanese universities in the context of the changing landscape in higher education and considerations in implementing changes to course curricula programs and university admissions with regard to internationalization The four case studies presented provide readers with clear examples of how the internationalization of higher education institutions is developing within the Japanese higher education system and the issues that different higher education institutions face in this process Journal of International Students, 2015 Vol. 5(1)

 International Education Anne M. D'Angelo, Mary Katherine O'Brien, Gayla Marty, 2022-07-26 Focusing on the work of Josef A Mestenhauser 1925 2015 and the depth and breadth of his contribution to the area of internationalization of higher education this book addresses the theoretical foundations of the field of international education and the implications for practice and strategy It considers key concepts and poses questions for discussion that make Mestenhauser's work accessible to new readers Through a series of provocative essays contributors to this volume examine Mestenhauser's influence on their understanding and practice of international education the relevance of his work today the transferability of his ideas across contexts and current interpretations of the field They consider areas of agreement and disagreement that illuminate pathways for inquiry and future practice affirming the importance of his work in a new global landscape Mestenhauser and the Possibilities of International Education is suitable reading for all those interested in the internationalization of higher education including higher education faculty students researchers and international education and higher education policy makers Dominant Beliefs and Alternative Voices Joan Elias Gore, 2017-09-25 This book examines why study abroad is a marginal activity in American higher education and evaluates the role gender has played in the development and maintenance of this marginality Education Abroad and the Undergraduate Experience Elizabeth Brewer, Anthony C.
 Ogden, 2023-07-03 Co published with This volume focuses on two questions First how can education abroad be embedded into undergraduate education so that students experience it as an integral component of their education and something they help shape rather than as time away from their education and as a commodity to be consumed Second how can colleges and universities maximize the educational value of education abroad by forging stronger connections between it and other undergraduate experiences The volume argues that learning abroad be positioned within the work of the larger institution and students overall education Organized within three sections this volume makes the case that learning abroad must be positioned within the work of the larger institution and students overall education In doing so it questions many current assumptions and stimulates thinking about the power of an integrative approach to education abroad to lead to lasting educative value An integrative approach requires that students be afforded multiple opportunities and ongoing support to draw connections with their learning abroad with other dimensions of their undergraduate education Chapters cover topics such as the additive value of integrating multiple HIPs with education abroad to span disciplinary boundaries and promote an array of soft or operational skills the importance of maintaining the disruptive quality of the encounter with the foreign to enrich study at home issues of commodification and reciprocity increasing access to study abroad to community college particularly adult populations facilitating students social and intellectual development identity formation and reflective practice rethinking orientation programming to emphasize the continuity of learning pre during and post education abroad asking fundamental questions about the purpose of education abroad to rethink assessment and its purposes the faculty role in the internationalization of the curriculum and developing more intentional relationships with in field partners and international educational organizations to more effectively connect leaning abroad with other dimensions of undergraduate education For everyone involved in international education whether SIOs faculty department chairs or deans the critical questions and new perspectives offered here will inform and shape the growing movement to integrate education abroad with the overall undergraduate experience

The Internationalization of the Academy Futao Huang, Martin Finkelstein, Michele Rostan, 2013-10-25 This volume provides a nuanced empirical assessment of the extent to which the academic profession is internationalized at the beginning of the 21st century It indicates which are the most internationalized academic activities and focuses on specific topics such as physical mobility for study or professional purposes teaching abroad or in another language research collaboration with foreign colleagues and publication and dissemination outside one's native country or in another language. It places the main theme in the wider context of the history of higher education's internationalization. It provides explanations on what drives and deters academics from international activity and documents some of the consequences that internationalization has on academic work and productivity. This study is based on a survey of 25 000 academics working at higher education institutions in 18 countries and Hong Kong on five continents. Comparing data from the 1992 Carnegie International study to the 2007 CAP survey relying on respondents' perceptions of change and comparing different academic generations, it offers valuable insights on changes in the internationalization of the academy.

The Political Economy of Educational Reforms and Capacity Development in Southeast Asia Yasushi Hirosato, Yuto Kitamura, 2009-02-07

Yasushi Hirosato and Yuto Kitamura

Developing countries including Southeast Asian countries face an enormous challenge in ensuring equitable access to quality education in the context of deepening globalization and increasing international competition. They must simultaneously meet the goals of Education for All (EFA) at the basic education level and of developing a more sophisticated workforce required by the knowledge-based economy at the post-basic, especially tertiary education level. To meet this challenge, developing countries need to reform/renovate their education systems and service deliveries as an integral part of national development. However, most of them have not yet fully developed the individual institutional and system capacities in undertaking necessary education reforms, especially under decentralization and privatization, requiring new roles at various central and local or public and private levels of administration and stakeholders. Provided that an ultimate vision of educational development and cooperation in the twenty-first century would be to develop indigenous capacity in engineering education reforms, this book analyzes the overall education reform context and capacity, including the status of sector program support using the sector-wide approach (SWAp), program-based approach (PBA) in developing countries. We also address how different stakeholders have been interacting in order to promote equitable access to quality education, particularly from the perspectives of capacity development under the system of decentralization.
