The Man Inside Natalie Sumner Lincoln, 2022-01-29 Excerpt The long hot tropic day was drawing to its close The shadows were gradually rising and filling the narrow street and every now and then from the side of the open drain which ran through the middle of the street a large black carrion bird flew up There was no sidewalk the cobblestones running right up to the low white house walls The windows which opened on the street were for the most part few in number small and heavily barred It was not by any means the best quarter in Colon One building more pretentious than the rest was distinguished from its neighbours by large French windows also protected by the iron screen or reja It was impossible to tell the nationality of the one man lounging along the street He seemed profoundly buried in his own thoughts Dark as his skin was and black as was his beard there was something about him which negated the idea that he was a Spaniard His rolling walk suggested the sailor's life As he passed the building with the long French windows the tinkle of a guitar roused his attention and he stepped inside the front door and glanced furtively at the few men who lounged about the tables which dotted the long room Passing by several empty tables and chairs the stranger seated himself in the corner of the room on the side further from the street near a window which opened on a neglected garden A tropical vine thrust its branches against what had once been a wood and glass partition which formed the end of the room the branches and leaves twining in and out among the broken panes of the window

The Man Inside Graham Apthorpe, 2019-07-05 Graham Apthorpe's account of the Cowra outbreak is superb Narrated in a fresh way in elegant and original prose and with a wonderful gift for taking the unexpected angle it does great service to this astonishing Australian Japanese event and will have a honoured place in the canon of fascinating works on the incident Thomas Keneally The War in the Pacific has turned thousands of the previously invincible Japanese soldiers are now being captured in New Guinea and interned at the Cowra Prisoner of War Camp Unlike other POWs the traditional Japanese Bushido Code and their fanaticism leaves them ill equipped for surrender and imprisonment Ashamed subdued and sullen one man Second Lieutenant Maseo Naka is an exception Obstructing the Australian authorities at every turn he was the first Japanese soldier to escape from Cowra This action becomes the precursor for the more than 1000 Japanese prisoners who escape in the bloodiest Breakout of World War II that ultimately saw 234 Japanese and four Australian guards killed His escape and the defiance guilt and shame that motivated it led to his court martial Naka nevertheless stands out as very human another tragic victim of the global inferno that was World War II Adhering to the Samurai Code of Bushido he doggedly undertakes actions that he views as necessary for the maintenance of his honour Through the insights of those around Naka together with new research including the personal accounts of Australian interrogators the author shows how this handsome loner provided the impetus for the dramatic events in the early hours of August 5 1944 where hundreds of Japanese soldiers stormed the Camp defences for honour or death A Good Man

DEEP INSIDE THE MAN'S MIND Loredana Elena EGRI,2023-10-14 I wrote this book during pregnancy The words flowed out during those sleepless nights that every pregnant woman knows so well After jotting down literally everything that came to mind I realized it was material for a book so I published it It was the first version in Romanian However soon after pregnancy what I initially thought would be a simple translation into English turned out to be an almost complete rewrite of the entire book I discovered that my perception of everything including relationships had changed drastically Pregnancy and motherhood forced me to delve deeper into my own childhood and understand the blind patterns that were driving my behavior and choices I was overlooking my personal biases and assumptions leading to unpleasant outcomes I could no longer deny or tolerate The journey not easy at all full of fears of all kinds and vulnerability proved to be useful and helped me gain a deeper more meaningful sense of self and a stronger connection with my partner The book is a profound introspective journey designed to be an easy one evening read for anyone interested in discovering what they can do to enhance their own well being and relationships

Inside the Bataan Death March Kevin C. Murphy,2014-10-27 For two weeks during the spring of 1942 the Bataan Death March one of the most widely condemned atrocities of World War II unfolded The prevailing interpretation of this event is simple American prisoners of war suffered cruel treatment at the hands of their Japanese captors while Filipinos sympathetic to the Americans looked on Most survivors of the march wrote about their experiences decades after the war and a number of factors distorted their accounts The crucial aspect of memory is central to this study how it is constructed by whom and for what purpose This book questions the prevailing interpretation reconsiders the actions of all three groups in their cultural contexts and suggests a far greater complexity Among the conclusions is that violence on the march was largely the result of a clash of cultures undisciplined individualistic Americans encountered Japanese who valued order and form while Filipinos were active even ambitious participants in the drama
