Modelling The Labour Market:

Modelling the Labour Market Michael Beenstock, 2012-12-06 It is generally agreed that the operation of the labour market lies at the heart of macroeconomic activity Following Keynes attack on the postulates of the classics in The General Theory a number of labour market paradigms have been proposed including the Phillips curve new classical and union bargaining models These paradigms usually form the centrepiece of any good text on macroeconomic theory Our purpose in this volume is not to restate these paradigms but to explore the extent to which they might be empirically modelled To this end the volume includes a set of econometric models of the UK labour market where each contribution relates very closely to one of the principal paradigms The purpose of this collection is threefold First and foremost we wanted to present an integrated set of case studies in applied econometrics with reference to labour market modelling In doing so we hope the volume will appeal to third year undergraduates and postgraduate students studying applied econometrics and labour economics Secondly the contributions have been carefully selected to illustrate the main paradigms since each contribution is intellectually self contained It is arguable that this may be disadvantageous as far as the truth is concerned if eclecticism is preferable On the other hand it has pedagogic advantages in drawing sharp distinctions between the various approaches

Tax and Benefit Reforms in a Model of Labour Market Transitions Michał Myck, Howard Reed, 2006 Agent-Based Modelling of Social Networks in Labour-Education Market System Alexander Tarvid, 2015-11-27 This book covers the modelling of human behaviour in the education and labour markets which due to their interdependency are viewed as one system Important factors influencing the decision making of individuals and firms in this system are discussed The role of social environment and networks is stressed The approach of agent based modelling is presented and compared with standard economic modelling and other simulation techniques in the context of modelling complex adaptive systems Practical questions in building agent based models of labour education market system with social networks are discussed These questions include modelling the structure of education system and agent behaviour there modelling and calibrating the labour market without and with firms generating the social network defining its behaviour and calibrating it and embedding the resulting system into a larger model CHINAGEM—A Dynamic General Equilibrium Model of China: Theory, Data and Applications Xiujian Peng, 2023-08-23 This book contains detailed documentation of the CHINAGEM model a large scale dynamic computable general equilibrium CGE model of China and its applications Specifically this book documents the theory and database behind the CHINAGEM model This book explores the closure development for the four simulation modes of the model including historical decomposition forecast and policy simulations the detailed explanation of how to analyze simulation results and the extensions of CHINAGEM and their applications These extensions include several innovative modules and case studies as examples of the application of CHINAGEM This book provides an entry point for CGE modellers to develop their analytical skills This book can also be used as a platform for research institutes to develop CGE models suitable for their research portfolio The module developments included in this book are designed to capture the specific features of the Chinese economy The applications of these modules chosen in the book cover hot policy issues in China and the simulation results have valuable policy implications This book identifies that the CHINAGEM model itself and all the extensions can be used for analysing many new topics and policy issues such as the effects of the USA China trade war the effects of Made in China 2025 Plan as well as China's commitment to the carbon neutrality before 2060 and its economic implications

Agent-Based Modelling in Economics Lynne Hamill, Nigel Gilbert, 2016-01-19 Agent based modelling in economics Lynne Hamill and Nigel Gilbert Centre for Research in Social Simulation CRESS University of Surrey UK New methods of economic modelling have been sought as a result of the global economic downturn in 2008 This unique book highlights the benefits of an agent based modelling ABM approach It demonstrates how ABM can easily handle complexity heterogeneous people households and firms interacting dynamically Unlike traditional methods ABM does not require people or firms to optimise or economic systems to reach equilibrium ABM offers a way to link micro foundations directly to the macro situation Key features Introduces the concept of agent based modelling and shows how it differs from existing approaches Provides a theoretical and methodological rationale for using ABM in economics along with practical advice on how to design and create the models Each chapter starts with a short summary of the relevant economic theory and then shows how to apply ABM Explores both topics covered in basic economics textbooks and current important policy themes unemployment exchange rates banking and environmental issues Describes the models in pseudocode enabling the reader to develop programs in their chosen language Supported by a website featuring the NetLogo models described in the book Agent based Modelling in Economics provides students and researchers with the skills to design implement and analyze agent based models Third year undergraduate master and doctoral students faculty and professional economists will find this book an invaluable resource
