Models Of Man A Phenomenological Critique Of Some Paradigms In The Human Sciences:

Models of Man J.J. Dagenais, 2012-12-06 This essay is first a theoretical and historical study of some classical scientific ways of studying human being in the world The more readily accessible and more commonly discussed models of being human were chosen for review here but structuralism is included because I believe it will have the same impact in America as it has had in France and I hope that American readers might be forewarned about what may be ideologically at stake before the technical and fruitful aspects of the movement become an academic fad in the United States The subjects included are mainline experimental psychology from Wundt to Skinner with its relatively shortlived functionalist and Watsonian behaviorist formulations holistic psychology from Brentano through Stumpf Husserl and Goldstein to Maslow Rogers and contemporary third force psychology and the psychoanalytic model for which the only paradigm is Freud himself Preeminence is given to psychological paradigms since their subject matter lies closest to the classical philosophical tradition from which philosophical anthropology emerged This book is in the final analysis a prolegomenon to an articulated philosophical anthropology Sociological models are also considered the classical tradition from Comte to the present and Marxist anthropology from the manuscripts of 1844 to the present The structuralist model from Durkheim to Chomsky is also considered since it cuts across and gives new dimensions to all the foregoing models The essay is second a phenomenological critique of these historico theoretical considerations The Problem of Freedom and Necessity in Human Action Soyam Lokendrajit Singh, 1987 Philosophical Foundations for Moral Education and Character

Development George F. McLean, Frederick Edward Ellrod, 1992 Models of Man James J. Dagenais, 1972

Wittgenstein, Education and the Problem of Rationality Michael A. Peters, 2021-01-21 This book develops an argument for a historicist and non foundationalist notion of rationality based on an interpretation of Wittgenstein of the Philosophical Investigations and On Certainty The book examines two notions of rationality a universal versus a constitutive conception and their significance for educational theory The former advanced by analytic philosophy of education as a form of conceptual analysis is based on a mistaken reading of Wittgenstein Analytic philosophy of education used a reading of Wittgenstein's philosophy of language to set up and justify an absolute universal and ahistorical notion of rationality By contrast the book examines the underlying influence of the later Wittgenstein on the historicist turn in philosophy of science as a basis for a non foundationalist and constitutive notion of rationality which is both historical and cultural and remains consistent with wider developments in philosophy hermeneutics and social theory This book aims to understand the philosophical motivation behind this view to examine its intellectual underpinnings and to substitute this universal conception of rationality by reference to a Hegelian interpretation of the later Wittgenstein that emphasizes his status as an anti foundational thinker Crafting Phenomenological Research Mark D. Vagle, 2016-06-16 This is an accessible concise introduction to phenomenological research in education and social sciences Mark Vagle outlines the key principles for conducting this research from leading contemporary practitioners such as van Manen Giorgi and Dahlberg He builds on their work by introducing his post intentional phenomenology which incorporates elements of post structural thinking into traditional methods Vagle provides readers with methodological tools to build their own phenomenological study addressing such issues as data gathering validity and writing Replete with exercises for students case studies resources for further research and examples of completed phenomenological studies this brief book affords the instructor an easy entrance into introducing phenomenology into courses on qualitative research social theory or educational research B/ordering Space Henk van Houtum, 2017-03-02 In the wake of globalization numerous social scientists are turning to concepts of mobility fluidity and hybridity to characterize a presumed de territorialization and de bordering of contemporary social and economic relations This book brings together a select group of internationally renowned human geographers to explore the use of these concepts in relation to space place and territory In doing so they re situate the subject of borders as active socio spatial processes from a variety of theoretical perspectives The contributors link debates on borders to discussions within the wider sphere of cultural studies notably those addressing themes of migration post colonialism the formation of national regional identities and radical democratic practice The chapters focus on those discursive practices that constitute bordered geographical entities in the first instance through differentiated regimes of discourse The book thus transcends the narrower field of borderlands research by building bridges to other domains of enquiry within political and human geography A Critical Psychology Edmund V. Sullivan, 2012-12-06 If the reader will excuse a brief anecdote from my own intellectual history I would like to use it as an introduction to this book In 1957 I was a sophomore at an undergraduate liberal arts college majoring in medieval history This was the year that we were receiving our first introduction to courses in philosophy and I took to this study with a passion In pursuing philosophy I discovered the area called philosophical psychology which was a Thomistic category of inquiry For me philosophical psychology meant a more intimate study of the soul psyche and I immediately concluded that psychology as a discipline must be about this pursuit This philosophical interest led me to enroll in my first introductory psychology course Our text for this course was the first edition of Ernest Hilgaard's Introduction to Psychology My reasons for entering this course were anticipated in the introductory chapter of Hilgaard's book where the discipline and its boundaries were discussed and this introduction was to disabuse me of my original intention for enrolling in the course I was to learn that in the 20th century people who called themselves psychologists were no longer interested in perennial philosophical questions about the human psyche or person In fact these philosophical questions were considered to be obscurantist and passe Psychology was now the scientific study of human behavior This definition of psychology by Hilgaard was by no means idiosyncratic to this introductory textbook Human Nature in American Thought Merle Eugene Curti, 1980 Critical Issues in Peace and Education Peter Pericles Trifonas, Bryan Wright, 2014-04-04 This collection asks theorists and educational practitioners from around the world influenced by the schools of feminist pedagogy critical pedagogy anti racist or postcolonial pedagogy and gay and lesbian pedagogy to reflect upon the possibilities of articulating a curriculum of difference that critically examines the cross cultural issues of peace and education that are at the forefront of global education issues today Contributors examine the conceptualizations of peace and education within between and across cultures through the conceptualization of pedagogical possibilities that create an openness toward the horizons of the other within communal formations of difference permeating the public sphere They take up new ways of questions related to globalization difference community identity peace democracy sexuality ethics conflict politics feminism technology language rights cultural politics Marxism and deconstruction that have a vast literary history in and outside the area of education This volume makes a significant contribution to the question of difference and its quintessential role in peace education for the new millennium
