Seminar paper from the year 1998 in the subject American Studies Literature grade 2 B University of Aberdeen English Department course Chicano Fiction language English abstract In this essay I will address the question of Chicano identity by investigating two very different texts that both deal with a quest for identity in a Mexican American context Tom s Rivera s And the Earth Did Not Devour Him and Richard Rodriguez Hunger of Memory The Education of Richard Rodriguez I will first discuss the contextual differences between the two works Then I will consider the definitions of identity upon which the texts are based Going deeper into the works themselves I will finally discuss along which lines the two quests for identity develop In conclusion I will connect my investigations to the question of whether Chicano identity is unified or fragmented Both Tom s Rivera's And the Earth Did Not Devour Him and Richard Rodriguez's Hunger for Memory are about an individual searching for his identity. In both works the protagonist is a Mexican American or Chicano. However, the differences between the two books are huge. The generic difference is most obvious: Rivera's work is a fictional narrative which Hector Calderón termed novel as tales.<sup>1</sup> Rodriguez, referring to his book, speaks of essays impersonating an autobiography.<sup>p. 7</sup> This entails that the subject searching for identity is in Rodriguez's case the author himself or rather his literary image. In Rivera's case the subject is purely fictional, although some critics have identified this literary subject with the author.

Short Fiction By Hispanic Writers of the United States Nicolás Kanellos, 1993-01-01. Short Fiction by Hispanic Writers of the United States includes representative works by the most celebrated Cuban American, Mexican American, and Puerto Rican writers of short fiction in the country. The texts cover a full range of expression, themes, and styles of US Hispanics and are introduced by informative entries which place the authors in their cultural and historic frameworks. In these pages the reader will not find picturesque, folksy, or touristy renditions of Hispanic culture. Instead, Short Fiction by Hispanic Writers of the United States brings together works that are clear, incisive, and authentic representations of Hispanic life in the United States. The selections are as diverse as Hispanic culture itself and as varied as the personalities of their authors. Here are Max Martínez's outrageous challenge of racial and social structures; Roberta Fernández's construction of Hispanic women's aesthetics; Roberto Fernández's subversion of the English language; Nicholasa Mohr's humorous attack on patriarchy; and Judith Ortiz Cofer's poetic evocation of childhood and biculturalism. This collection engages in aesthetic and cultural experience that will result in a redefined canon and a new identity for the country as a whole. They are refocusing our perception of ourselves as a people and a culture. The pressure and the commitment to do so, of course, make for excellence and innovation in literary expression. It also makes for enjoyable reading. Short Fiction by Hispanic Writers of the United States is recommended for the general fiction reader and for use in high school and college literature classes in search of a multicultural perspective.

This volume, bringing together a representative selection of Leal's writings from the past sixty years, is at once a wide-ranging introduction to the most influential scholar of Latino literature and a critical history of the field as it emerged and developed through the twentieth century. Instrumental in establishing Mexican literary studies in the United States, Leal's writings on the topic are especially instructive, ranging from essays on the significance of symbolism, culture, and history in early Chicano literature to studies of the more recent use of magical realism and of individual New Mexican, Tejano, and Mexican authors such as Juan Rulfo, Carlos Fuentes, José Montoya, and Mariano Azuela.
