Modern Chinese Parts of Speech Guo Rui,2019-03-04 What is the essence of a part of speech Why is it difficult to classify parts of speech What are the bases and criteria for classifying them How should they be classified In doing so how should a conversional word be dealt with How should nomonalization be treated These are just some of the questions answered in this book The classification of parts of speech in Chinese is a tough job due to the language s lack of morphological differences Based on the analysis of nearly 40 000 Chinese characters this book proposes that essentially a part of speech is not of distributional type and that its intrinsic basis is an expressional function and the semantic type. Essentially large categories such as substantive words, predicate words and modification words are classes of words classified according to their expressional functions. Basic categories such as nouns, verbs and adjectives are classes that combine semantic types with syntactical functions. In classifying parts of speech, the book pays attention not to identifying a single distributive characteristic that is internally universal and externally exclusive but to clustering the grammatical functions that have the same classification value through the reflection representation relationship among distribution, expressional function and semantic type. Distribution reflects expressional function and semantic type which are in turn represented as distribution, thereby identifying the classification criteria. It uses distributional compatibility and the correlation principle to analyze which distributional differences represent differences in parts of speech and which do not. In this way, grammatical functions that have equal classification values are collected into one equivalent function cluster, each of which represents one part of speech. The book uses four strategies to classify parts of speech: namely, the homogeneity strategy, the homomorphical strategy, the priority homomorphical strategy and the consolidation strategy. It will be a valuable reference for Chinese linguistic researchers and students as well as Chinese learners.

Advanced Data Mining and Applications Xue Li, Shuliang Wang, 2005-07-12. This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the First International Conference on Advanced Data Mining and Applications ADMA 2005 held in Wuhan, China, in July 2005. The conference was focused on sophisticated techniques and tools that can handle new fields of data mining: e.g. spatial data mining, biomedical data mining and mining on high speed and time variant data streams. An expansion of data mining to new applications is also strived for. The 25 revised full papers and 75 revised short papers presented were carefully peer reviewed and selected from over 600 submissions. The papers are organized in topical sections on: association rules, classification, clustering, novel algorithms, text mining, multimedia mining, sequential data mining and time series mining, web mining, biomedical mining, advanced applications, security and privacy issues, spatial data mining and streaming data mining.

Multiliteracies in World Language Education Yuri Kumagai, Ana López-Sánchez, Sujane Wu, 2015-10-05. Putting a multiliteracies framework at the center of the world language curriculum, this volume brings together college level curricular innovations and classroom projects that address differences in meaning and worldviews expressed in learners' primary and target languages. Offering a rich understanding of languages, genres and modalities as socioculturally situated semiotic systems, it advocates an effective pedagogy for developing learners' abilities to operate between languages. Chapters showcase curricula that draw on a multiliteracies framework and present various classroom projects that develop aspects of multiliteracies for language learners. A discussion of the theoretical background and historical development of the pedagogy of multiliteracies and its relevance to the field of world language education positions this book within the broader literature on foreign language education. As developments in globalization, accountability and austerity challenge contemporary academia and the current structure of world language programs this book shows how the implementation of a multiliteracies based approach brings coherence to language programs and how the framework can help to accomplish the goals of higher education in general and of language education in particular

Imagining Sisterhood in Modern Chinese Texts, 1890-1937 Yun Zhu, 2017-03-16 This book investigates sisterhood as a converging thread that wove female subjectivities and intersubjectivities into a larger narrative of Chinese modernity embedded in a newly conceived global context It focuses on the period between the late Qing reform era around the turn of the twentieth century and the outbreak of the Second Sino Japanese War in 1937 which saw the emergence of new ways of depicting Chinese womanhood in various kinds of media In a critical hermeneutic approach Zhu combines an examination of an outside perspective how narratives and images about sisterhood were mobilized to shape new identities and imaginations with that of an inside perspective how subjects saw themselves as embedded in or affected by the discourse and how they negotiated such experiences within texts or through writing With its working definition of sisterhood covering biological as well as all kinds of symbolic and metaphysical connotations this book exams the literary and cultural representations of this elastic notion with attention to on the one hand a supposedly collective identity shared by all modern Chinese female subjects and on the other hand the contesting modes of womanhood that were introduced through the juxtaposition of divergent sisters Through an interdisciplinary approach that brings together historical materials literary and cultural analysis and theoretical questions Zhu conducts a careful examination of how new identities subjectivities and sentiments were negotiated and mediated through the hermeneutic circuits around sisterhood

"Getting By" Donald M. Nonini, 2015-08-11 How do class ethnicity gender and politics interact In what ways do they constitute everyday life among ethnic minorities In Getting By Donald M Nonini draws on three decades of research in the region of Penang state in northern West Malaysia mainly in the city of Bukit Mertajam to provide an ethnographic and historical account of the cultural politics of class conflict and state formation among Malaysians of Chinese descent Countering triumphalist accounts of the capitalist Chinese diaspora in Southeast Asia Nonini shows that the Chinese of Penang as elsewhere are riven by deep class divisions and that class issues and identities are omnipresent in everyday life

Nor are the common features of Chinese culture in Malaysia manifestations of some unchanging cultural essence. Rather his long immersion in the city shows they are the results of an interaction between Chinese Malaysian practices in daily life and the processes of state formation in particular the ways in which Kuala Lumpur has defined different categories of citizens. Nonini's ethnography is based on semistructured interviews, participant observation of events, informal gatherings and meetings, a commercial census, intensive reading of Chinese language and English language newspapers, the study of local Chinese language sources, contemporary government archives and numerous exchanges with residents. The Right Periphery in L2 Chinese Shanshan Yan, 2022-12-29. The Right Periphery in L2 Chinese is among the first books to try to incorporate both advanced linguistic and acquisition perspectives to show how eight sentence final particles are represented in English speaking learners of L2 Chinese. This book will inform researchers of the general construction of the right periphery in L2 grammars. Drawing on up to date theoretical frameworks and findings from advanced empirical studies, it sketches the general picture of the periphery that these particles occupy in English Chinese interlanguages. Readers will grasp the problems and difficulties and particularly the ambiguities which learners of Chinese must grapple with in the process of acquiring sentence final particles. Possible influential factors underlying the acquisition process are explicitly discussed as well. Researchers will also find insights in the advanced methodologies and statistics that are used to study Chinese. The book will be illuminating for researchers interested in SLA, linguists of generative theories and educators teaching Chinese as a second foreign language. Reading Chinese Script Jian Wang, Hsuan-Chih Chen, Ralph Radach, Albrecht Inhoff, 1999-02-01. This volume uses unique properties of Chinese script to focus on morphological analyses during the character and word recognition process, though some of the reported work also pertains to the use of phonological information. In addition, this volume contains work on syntactic and pragmatic processes during sentence reading and three chapters that examine on-line processes. A comprehensive appraisal of cognitive processes during the reading of Chinese script that includes studies conducted by leading researchers from within and outside the mainland, this volume will be of interest to all those studying reading and visual symbol processing. Contemporary Studies on Modern Chinese History I Zeng Yeying, 2020-10-29. The study of modern Chinese history has developed rapidly in recent decades and has seen increased exploration of new topics and innovative approaches. Resulting from a special issue of Modern Chinese History Studies, this volume is devoted to showcasing the healthy development of Chinese modern history studies and has already been revised twice in the original language. This volume exhibits major achievements on the study of modern Chinese history and shows how the role of history was in debate, transformation and re-evaluation throughout this tortuous yet prosperous period. Articles on eight different topics are collected from 11 prominent historians in order to represent their insights on the developmental paths of Chinese historical studies. Drawing on a large number of case studies of critical historical events such as the founding of the Communist Party of China and the May 4th Movement, this volume reflects on economic history and military history while moving on to explore more pioneering topics such as intellectual history and cultural history This book will be a valuable reference for scholars and students of Chinese history Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1996 Explorations into Chinese as a Second Language Istvan Kecskes,2017-06-23 This volume explores how linguistic research can support the teaching and learning of Chinese as a second language It responds to a rapidly growing interest in the Chinese language all over the world and answers the need for a strong research background for the discipline Without that Chinese language learning remains only a unique experience and or a useful education challenge The first section explores crucial issues about the structure and use of Chinese as a Second Language such as word order noun noun compounds meaning making in writing pronunciation and stress and tone The second section explores the learning of Chinese by seeking answer to questions about difficulties expectations beliefs use of corpus and learning how to express necessity The authors coming from eight different countries demonstrate how existing knowledge has been generated bring together different lines of research point out tendencies in the field demonstrate and explain what tools and methods researchers can use to address major issues in the field and give direction to what future research should focus on U.S. Naval Training Bulletin ,1949
