From May Fourth to June Fourth Ellen Widmer, Te-wei Wang, 2009-06-30 What do the Chinese literature and film inspired by the Cultural Revolution 1966 1976 have in common with the Chinese literature and film of the May Fourth movement 1918 1930 This new book demonstrates that these two periods of the highest literary and cinematic creativity in twentieth century China share several aims to liberate these narrative arts from previous aesthetic orthodoxies to draw on foreign sources for inspiration and to free individuals from social conformity Although these consistencies seem readily apparent with a sharper focus the distinguished contributors to this volume reveal that in many ways discontinuity not continuity prevails Their analysis illuminates the powerful meeting place of language imagery and narrative with politics history and ideology in twentieth century China Drawing on a wide range of methodologies from formal analysis to feminist criticism from deconstruction to cultural critique the authors demonstrate that the scholarship of modern Chinese literature and film has become integral to contemporary critical discourse They respond to Eurocentric theories but their ultimate concern is literature and film in China's unique historical context The volume illustrates three general issues preoccupying this century's scholars the conflict of the rural search for roots and the native soil movement versus the new strains of urban exoticism the diacritics of voice narrative mode and intertextuality and the reintroduction of issues surrounding gender and subjectivity

Important poets such as T ao Y Keeping the Nation's House Helen M. Schneider,2011-03-01 The term home economics often conjures images of sterile classrooms where girls learn to cook dinner and swaddle dolls far removed from the seats of power Helen Schneider unsettles this assumption by revealing how Chinese women helped to build a nation one family at a time From the 1920s to the early 1950s home economists transformed the most fundamental of political spaces the home by teaching women to nurture ideal families and manage projects of social reform Although their discipline came undone after 1949 it created a legacy of gendered professionalism and reinforced the idea that leaders should shape domestic rituals of the people New Woman in Early Twentieth-Century Chinese Fiction Jin Feng,2004-07-30 In The New Woman in Early Twentieth Century Chinese Fiction Jin Feng proposes that representation of the new woman in Communist Chinese fiction of the earlier twentieth century was paradoxically one of the ways in which male writers of the era explored negotiated and laid claim to their own emerging identity as modern intellectuals Specifically Feng argues that male writers such as Lu Xun Yu Dafu Ba Jin and Mao Dun created fictional women as mirror images of their own political inadequacy but that at the same time this was also an egocentric ploy to affirm and highlight the modernity of the male author This gender biased attitude was translated into reality when women writers emerged Whereas unfair gender biased criticism all but stifled the creative output of Bing Xin Fang Yuanjun and Lu Yin Ding Ling s dogged attention to narrative strategy allowed her to maintain subjectivity and independence in her writings that is until all writers were forced to write for the collective Feng addresses both the general and the specialized audience of fiction in early twentieth century Chinese fiction in three ways for scholars of the May Fourth period Feng redresses the emphasis on the simplistic gender neutral representation of the new women by re reading selected texts in the light of marginalized discourse and by an analysis of the evolving strategies of narrative deployment for those working in the area of feminism and literary studies Feng develops a new method of studying the representation of Chinese women through an interrogation of narrative permutations ideological discourses and gender relationships and for studies of modernity and modernization the author presents a more complex picture of the relationships of modern Chinese intellectuals to their cultural past and of women writers to a literary tradition dominated by men
