Conferencia dictada en la Facultad de Arquitectura, Diseño y Urbanismo (Universidad de Buenos Aires), los días 14 y 22 de agosto de 1998. Publicado por Editorial G. Gili, Buenos Aires.

Quienos hemos habitado cierta parcela del mundo del diseño en las últimas décadas, hemos protagonizado una serie de polémicas en torno a los aspectos sociales de la profesión; polémicas que expresaban un conflicto que trasciende por completo el ámbito del diseño. Se trata de uno de los conflictos que se le plantea a toda persona con algún tipo de proyecto social que exceda los marcos de su realidad inmediata: la contradicción entre una forma de conciencia social y una praxis laboral concreta, determinada por un contexto socioeconómico dado, en el cual, y sólo en el cual, se puede trabajar. Epidemic Disease in Mexico City, 1761-1813 Donald B. Cooper, 2015-01-20 Five deadly epidemics chiefly typhus and smallpox struck Mexico City in the years between 1761 and 1813 claiming a minimum of fifty thousand lives Mexico City was at that time the major metropolis of the New World and the capital of New Spain by far the richest and most sophisticated city in that vast empire It had the best medicines the best doctors and the best hospitals of the New World What caused these devastating epidemics Donald B Cooper here makes a thorough study of the problem Based almost entirely on unpublished manuscript materials from the national archives of Mexico and the municipal archives of Mexico City his work represents the first detailed study of the impact of epidemic disease on the history of New Spain primarily of its capital The course of each epidemic its inclusive dates the mortality it caused and its effect upon the community are fully described At the time a major epidemic was in progress the author says all levels of government national and local secular and ecclesiastical became involved in varying degrees in providing resources and leadership The Church wealthy corporations and private citizens contributed the main funds During the actual time of crisis an outbreak could be prosecuted with remarkable success and cooperation Once an epidemic was over however little was done to prevent another No single person or agency in Mexico City was sufficiently cognizant of the diverse problems involved to cope with them within a national or regional range not even the viceroy Such vital public works as aqueducts waterlines roads and canals were inadequately maintained Such essential municipal services as cleaning streets and canals collecting garbage and refuse and caring for the muddy shallow cemeteries were poor if not nonexistent Government officials as well as the populace were insufficiently concerned with the relation between sanitation and disease The practice of medicine in eighteenth century Mexico had few scientific or professional aspects The close relation of medicine and theology tended to inhibit experimentation that might have effectively broadened the frontiers of medical knowledge Traditionalism acted as a barrier to the adoption of innovations In the epidemic of 1779 for instance inoculation which could have saved innumerable lives was totally rejected in the outbreak of 1797 it was accepted only by the small upper class when vaccination came to Mexico in 1803 it met the same militant opposition The wonder then is not that so many died of disease but that so many lived
