The Rise of Western Christendom Peter Robert Lamont Brown, 1995      The Rise of Western Christendom Peter Robert Lamont Brown, 2003      A Short Introduction to the History of Christianity Tim Dowley, 2018-06-01 Tim Dowley's masterful one-volume survey of church history is now available in a new, concise format designed with today's student in mind. Each section of Dowley's Introduction to the History of Christianity has been reviewed and content edited to create a more compact summary of Christian history. This new, shorter introduction retains the full color format of the popular full edition, including the third edition's new images and maps. Dowley has assembled a global cast of respected scholars to write the full story of the rise of the Christian faith and to provide a rounded picture of the worldwide development of Christianity. The volume has been praised as accurate, scholarly, and balanced. Its writers are committed to Christianity but also to the unhindered pursuit of truth that does not avoid the darker aspects of the varied story of Christianity. The accessible text is supported by detailed timelines, maps, profiles of key figures in Christianity, colorful images, and a complete glossary. Each section includes questions for discussion.

A History of Christian Conversion David W. Kling, 2020-05-05 Conversion has played a central role in the history of Christianity. In this first in-depth and wide-ranging narrative history, David Kling examines the dynamic of turning to the Christian faith by individuals, families, and people groups. Global in reach, the narrative progresses from early Christian beginnings in the Roman world to Christianity's expansion into Europe, the Americas, China, India, and Africa. Conversion is often associated with a particular strand of modern Christianity: evangelical and a particular type of experience: sudden, overwhelming. However, when examined over two millennia, it emerges as a phenomenon far more complex than any one-dimensional profile would suggest. No single unitary paradigm defines conversion, and no easily explicable process accounts for why people convert to Christianity Rather a multiplicity of factors historical personal social geographical theological psychological and cultural shape the converting process A History of Christian Conversion not only narrates the conversions of select individuals and peoples it also engages current theories and models to explain conversion and examines recurring themes in the conversion process divine presence gender and the body agency and motivation testimony and memory group and self identity authentic and nominal conversion and modes of communication Accessible to scholars students and those with a general interest in conversion Kling's book is the most satisfying and comprehensive account of conversion in Christian history to date this major work will become a standard must read in conversion studies

The Care of the Dead in Late Antiquity Éric Rebillard, 2012-04-06 In this provocative book Eric Rebillard challenges many long held assumptions about early Christian burial customs For decades scholars of early Christianity have argued that the Church owned and operated burial grounds for Christians as early as the third century Through a careful reading of primary sources including legal codes theological works epigraphical inscriptions and sermons Rebillard shows that there is little evidence to suggest that Christians occupied exclusive or isolated burial grounds in this early period In fact as late as the fourth and fifth centuries the Church did not impose on the faithful specific rituals for laying the dead to rest In the preparation of Christians for burial it was usually next of kin and not representatives of the Church who were responsible for what form of rite would be celebrated and evidence from inscriptions and tombstones shows that for the most part Christians didn't separate themselves from non Christians when burying their dead According to Rebillard it would not be until the early Middle Ages that the Church gained control over burial practices and that Christian cemeteries became common In this translation of Religion et S pulture L glise les vivants et les morts dans l Antiquit tardive Rebillard fundamentally changes our understanding of early Christianity The Care of the Dead in Late Antiquity will force scholars of the period to rethink their assumptions about early Christians as separate from their pagan contemporaries in daily life and ritual practice

Debating medieval Europe Stephen Mossman, 2020-12-07 Debating medieval Europe serves as an entry point for studying and teaching medieval history Rather than simply presenting foundational knowledge or introducing sources it provides the reader with frameworks for understanding the distinctive historiography of the period digging beneath the historical accounts provided by other textbooks to expose the contested foundations of apparently settled narratives It opens a space for discussion and debate as well as providing essential context for the sometimes overwhelming abundance of specialist scholarship Volume I addresses the early Middle Ages covering the period c 450 c 1050 The chapters are organised chronologically and cover such topics as the Carolingian Order England and the Atlantic Archipelago the Vikings and Ottonian Germany It features a highly distinguished selection of medieval historians including Paul Fouracre and Janet L Nelson

The Catechumenate in Late Antique Africa (4th -6th centuries) Matthieu Pignot, 2020-07-13 In The Catechumenate in Late Antique Africa 4th 6th centuries Matthieu Pignot explores how individuals became Christian in ancient North Africa Before baptism converts first became catechumens and spent a significant time of gradual integration into the community through rituals and teaching This book provides the first historical study of this process in African sources from Augustine of Hippo to canon of councils anonymous sermons and 6th century letters Pignot shows that practices varied more than is generally assumed and that catechumens because of their liminal position were a disputed and essential group in the development of Christian communities until the 6th century at least This book demonstrates that the catechumenate is key to understanding the processes of Christianisation and conversion in the West

Conversion in Late Antiquity: Christianity, Islam, and Beyond Arietta Papaconstantinou, Daniel L. Schwartz, 2016-03-03 The papers in this volume were presented at a Mellon Sawyer Seminar held at the University of Oxford in 2009 2010 which sought to investigate side by side the two important movements of conversion that frame late antiquity to Christianity at its start and to Islam at the other end Challenging the opposition between the two stereotypes of Islamic conversion as an intrinsically violent process and Christian conversion as a fundamentally spiritual one the papers seek to isolate the behaviours and circumstances that made conversion both such a common and such a contested phenomenon The spread of Buddhism in Asia in broadly the same period serves as an external comparator that was not caught in the net of the Abrahamic religions The volume is organised around several themes reflecting the concerns of the initial project with the articulation between norm and practice the role of authorities and institutions and the social and individual fluidity on the ground Debates discussions and the expression of norms and principles about conversion conversion are not rare in societies experiencing religious change and the first section of the book examines some of the main issues brought up by surviving sources This is followed by three sections examining different aspects of how those principles were or were not put into practice how conversion was handled by the state how it was continuously redefined by individual ambivalence and cultural fluidity and how it was enshrined through different forms of institutionalization Finally a topographical coda examines the effects of religious change on the iconic holy city of Jerusalem
