Global Fragments Anke Bartels,Dirk

Wiemann,2007 While the world seems to be getting ever smaller and globalization has become the ubiquitous buzz word regionalism and fragmentation also abound This might be due to the fact that far from being the alleged production of cultural homogeneity the global is constantly re defined and altered through the local This tension pervading much of contemporary culture has an obvious special relevance for the new varieties of English and the literature published in English world wide Postcolonial literatures exist at the interface of English as a hegemonic medium and its many national regional and local competitors that transform it in the new English literatures Thus any exploration of a globalization of cultures has to take into account the fact that culture is a complex field characterized by hybridization plurality and difference But while global or transnational cultures may allow for a new cosmopolitanism that produces ever changing fluid identities they do not give rise to an egalitarian global village an asymmetry between centre and periphery remains largely intact albeit along new parameters The essays collected in this volume offer readings of literary theoretical and filmic texts from the postcolonial world These texts are read as attempts to articulate the global with the local from a perspective of immersion in the actual diversity of life worlds focusing on such issues as consumption identity politics and modes of affiliation In this sense they are global fragments locally refracted figurations of an experience of world wide interconnectedness

Staging the revolution Rachel Willie,2015-10-01 Staging the revolution offers a reappraisal of the weight and volume of theatrical output during the commonwealth and early Restoration both in terms of live performances and performances on the paper stage It argues that the often cited notion that 1642 marked an end to theatrical production in England until the playhouses were reopened in 1660 is a product of post Restoration re writing of the English civil wars and the representations of royalists and parliamentarians that emerged in the 1640s and 1650s These retellings of recent events in dramatic form mean that drama is central to civil war discourse Staging the revolution examines the ways in which drama was used to rewrite the civil war and commonwealth period and demonstrates that far from marking a clear cultural demarcation from the theatrical output of the early seventeenth century the Restoration is constantly reflecting back on the
