Still Being Punished Rachael Selby, 1999 This book records the stories of five Maori men and women They are not their life stories and they haven t told them over and over again They ve snuck bits of these stories in to conversations they ve had with families and friends over the years They ve tentatively tested some of the contents on friends or acquaintances and in some cases they ve been disbelieved which is why they are important and must be told This book allows them to tell their stories The stories collected here are told by Maori men and women who were physically disciplined at school for speaking the Maori language Their stories are of the on going effects of institutional violence meted out at the intersection of body language and society While the author has highlighted the lessons to be learnt by rangatahi the messages are by no means confined to them This book contains valuable lessons for social workers educators medical personnel politicians in fact any person who has the privilege of reading it Jill Bevan Brown Social Work Review December 1999

Semiotics and Hermeneutics of the Everyday Gregory Paschalidis, Lia Yoka, 2015-06-18. The linchpin of the momentous paradigm shift that produced the new hermeneutics of everyday life was a focus on people as active agents in various cultural contexts, uses, and practices, the merging of the conventional distinctions between the private and the public, the local and the global, the material and the symbolic, and the bridging of the agency structure divide, marking grand historical and cultural narratives. In their place, a wealth of new kinds of narratives were produced out of what.

The Truth Seeker Lucy White, 2003-07. Asia/Pacific as Space of Cultural Production Rob Wilson, Arif Dirlik, 1995. Although the Asia Pacific region occupies a prominent place in geopolitical thinking, little is available to readers concerning the resistant communities and cultures of Pacific and Asian peoples. This book fills that gap by documenting the efforts of diverse indigenous cultures to claim and reimagine Asia Pacific as a space for their own cultural production by presenting essays, poems, and memoirs by prominent Asia Pacific writers that resist appropriation by transnational capitalism through the articulation of autonomous local identities and counter histories of place and community. In addition, cultural critics spanning several locations and disciplines deconstruct representations, particularly those on film and in novels that perpetuate Asia Pacific as a realm of EuroAmerican fantasy. This collection offers a new perception of the Asia Pacific region by presenting the Pacific not as a paradise or vast emptiness but as a place where living, struggling peoples have constructed contemporary identities out of a long history of hegemony and resistance.

This Horrid Practice Paul Moon, 2008-08-04. Though stronger evidence of this horrid practice prevailing among the inhabitants of this coast will scarcely be required, we have still stronger to give Captain James Cook. This Horrid Practice uncovers an unexplored taboo of New Zealand history: the widespread practice of cannibalism in pre-European Maori society. Until now, many historians have tried to avoid it, and many Maori have considered it a subject best kept quiet about in public. Paul Moon brings together an impressive array of sources from a variety of disciplines to produce this frequently contentious but always stimulating exploration of how and why Maori ate other human beings and why the practice shuddered to a halt just a few decades after the arrival of Europeans in New Zealand. The book includes a comprehensive survey of cannibalism practices among traditional Maori, carefully assessing the evidence and concluding it was widespread. Other chapters look at how explorers and missionaries saw the practice, the role of missionaries and Christianity in its end, and in the final chapter, why there has been so much denial on the subject and why some academics still deny that it ever happened. This Horrid Practice promises to be one of the leading works of New Zealand history published in 2008. It is a highly original work that every New Zealand history enthusiast will want to own and read.

New Zealand Lizards David G. Chapple, 2016-10-05. This edited volume is a timely and comprehensive summary of the New Zealand lizard fauna. Nestled in the south-west Pacific, New Zealand is a large archipelago that displays the faunal signatures of both its Gondwanan origins and more recent oceanic island influences New Zealand was one of the last countries on Earth to be discovered and likewise the full extent of the faunal diversity present within the archipelago is only just starting to be appreciated. This is no better exemplified than in lizards where just 30 species, 20 skinks, 10 geckos were recognized in the 1950s but now 104 are formally or informally recognized, 61 skinks, 43 geckos. Thus New Zealand contains one of the most diverse lizard faunas of any cool temperate region on Earth. This book brings together the world's leading experts in the field to produce an authoritative overview of the history, taxonomy, biogeography, ecology, life history, physiology, and conservation of New Zealand lizards.

Museums and the Interpretation of Visual Culture Eileen Hooper-Greenhill, 2020-11-25 This is a multi-disciplinary study that adopts an innovative and original approach to a highly topical question that of meaning making in museums, focusing its attention on pedagogy and visual culture. This work explores such questions as: How and why is it that museums select and arrange artefacts, shape knowledge, construct a view? How do museums produce values? How do active audiences make meaning from what they experience in museums? This stimulating book provokes debate and discussion on these topics and puts forward the idea of a new museum, the post museum, which will challenge the familiar modernist museum. A must for students and professionals in the field.

With Compass, Chain & Courage Doris Gray-Woods, 2009 A brilliant book rich in history about the beginnings of surveying in Australia and New Zealand. It documents the difficulties, dilemmas, and changes in surveying throughout the 1800s through the story of two remarkable brothers, James and Horatio Warner.

Exploring Maori Values John Patterson, 1992 This book offers Pakeha New Zealanders an insight into Māori thought and values and the basis for the sort of understanding and partnership that should exist between Pakeha and Maori. It also presents a new perspective from which long-held Pakeha values can be reassessed. John Patterson attempts, as an investigative philosopher, to come to grips with personal embedded limitations that inform any look into one world view from the perspective of another. He demonstrates a high degree of empathy with and respect for Māori and the book offers a practical model for engagement with this culture and for greater mutual understanding.

Historical & Political Dictionary of New Zealand Keith Jackson, Alan McRobie, 2008 This new retitled and expanded New Zealand edition is a substantially revised edition of the Historical Dictionary of New Zealand published in the United States in 2005. It describes the many changes of the past decade while building on the solid foundations of the earlier editions that examined the country's long and lively history. relations between the Pakeha and the Maori to the country's recent economic changes and environmental policies. The introduction provides a good starting point and the chronology traces New Zealand's history from the earliest settlers to the present. The dictionary includes hundreds of entries on important people, places, events, and institutions, as well as significant political, economic, social, and cultural aspects, and a bibliography for further reading.
