In pursuing modernization, China will not tread the old path of war, colonization and plunder taken by some countries. That brutal and blood-stained path of enrichment at the expense of others caused great suffering for the people of developing countries. Dedicated to peace, development, cooperation and mutual benefit, we will strive to safeguard world peace and development as we pursue our own development, and we will make greater contributions to world peace and development through our own development.

The Political Logic of Economic Reform in China Susan L. Shirk, 1993 In the past decade China was able to carry out economic reform without political reform while the Soviet Union attempted the opposite strategy How did China succeed at economic market reform without changing communist rule Susan Shirk shows that Chinese communist political institutions are more flexible and less centralized than their Soviet counterparts were Shirk pioneers a rational choice institutional approach to analyze policy making in a non democratic authoritarian country and to explain the history of Chinese market reforms from 1979 to the present Drawing on extensive interviews with high level Chinese officials she pieces together detailed histories of economic reform policy decisions and shows how the political logic of Chinese communist institutions shaped those decisions Combining theoretical ambition with the flavor of on the ground policy making in Beijing this book is a major contribution to the study of reform in China and other communist countries

China John King Fairbank, Merle Goldman, 2006-04-30 A broad history of China covering the period from the earliest archaeological records to the present Updated by Merle Goldman from the original 1992 edition in order to include the reforms in the post Mao period through the early years of the twenty first century including the leadership of Hu Jintao She also provides an epilogue discussing the changes in contemporary China that will shape the nation in the years to come

China's Second Revolution Harry Harding, 2010-12-01 China has since 1976 been enmeshed in an extraordinary program of renewal and reform The obvious changes the T shirts blue jeans makeup and jewelry worn by Chinese youth the disco music blaring from radios and loudspeakers on Chinese streets the television antennas mushrooming from both urban apartment complexes and suburban peasant housing the bustling free markets selling meat vegetables and clothing in China's major cities reflect a fundamental shift in the government's policy toward the economy and political life Although doubts about the long term commitment to reform arose after the student protests in December 1986 and the dismissal of Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang in January 1987 the scope of reform has been so broad and the pace of change so rapid that the post Mao era fully warrants Deng Xiaoping's description of it as the second revolution undertaken by the Chinese Communist Party

China's Longest Campaign Tyrene White, 2018-09-05 In the late 1970s just as China was embarking on a sweeping program of post Mao reforms it also launched a one child campaign This campaign which cut against the grain of rural reforms and childbearing preferences was the culmination of a decade long effort to subject reproduction to state planning Tyrene White here analyzes this great social engineering experiment drawing on more than twenty years of research including fieldwork and interviews with a wide range of family planning officials and rural cadres White explores the origins of China's birth planning approach to population control the implementation of the campaign in rural China strategies of resistance employed by villagers and policy consequences among them infanticide infant abandonment and sex ratio imbalances She also provides the first extensive political analysis of China's massive 1983 sterilization drive The birth planning project was the last and longest of the great mobilization campaigns surviving long after the Deng regime had officially abandoned mass campaigns as instruments of political control Arguing that the campaign had become an indispensable institution of rural governance White shows how the one child campaign mimicked the organizational style and rhythms both of political campaigns and economic production campaigns Against the backdrop of unfolding rural reforms only the campaign method could override obstacles to rural enforcement As reform gradually eroded and transformed patterns of power and authority however even campaigns grew increasingly ineffective paving the way for long overdue reform of the birth planning program

Economic Policy Making In China (1949-2016) Pieter Bottelier, 2018-04-09 This book explores the key ideas and the key people who were responsible for the development of China's economy from 1949 through 2016 It discusses how economic policy evolved how economic policy was formulated and how the role of economists in decision making evolved It considers the interplay between ideological and practical questions provides biographical details of key economists and includes a clear annotated chronology of events The book is especially valuable because the author as a senior World Bank official was a close observer of the situation and to some extent a key participant
