through the Boondocks Terry Caesar, 2000-07-03 Wry and honest essays on the everyday conditions of professional life at a second rate university with implications for our understanding of higher education in general Tenure in the Sacred Grove Joanne E. Cooper, Dannelle D. Stevens, 2002-02-19 A treasure trove of information for women and minorities in the academy who are beginning their quest for tenure Do Babies Matter? Mary Ann Mason, Nicholas H. Wolfinger, Marc Goulden, 2013-06-13 The new generation of scholars differs in many ways from its predecessor of just a few decades ago Academia once consisted largely of men in traditional single earner families Today men and women fill the doctoral student ranks in nearly equal numbers and most will experience both the benefits and challenges of living in dual income households This generation also has new expectations and values notably the desire for flexibility and balance between careers and other life goals However changes to the structure and culture of academia have not kept pace with young scholars desires for work family balance Do Babies Matter is the first comprehensive examination of the relationship between family formation and the academic careers of men and women The book begins with graduate students and postdoctoral fellows moves on to early and mid career years and ends with retirement Individual chapters examine graduate school how recent PhD recipients get into the academic game the tenure process and life after tenure The authors explore the family sacrifices women often have to make to get ahead in academia and consider how gender and family interact to affect promotion to full professor salaries and retirement Concrete strategies are suggested for transforming the university into a family friendly environment at every career stage The book draws on over a decade of research using unprecedented data resources including the Survey of Doctorate Recipients a nationally representative panel survey of PhDs in America and multiple surveys of faculty and graduate students at the ten campus University of California system Writing for Scholarly Publication Christine Pears Casanave, Stephanie Vandrick, 2003-10-17 This collection of first person essays by established authors provides a wealth of support and insights for new and experienced academic writers in language education and multicultural studies Although writing for publication is becoming increasingly important as these fields become both more professional and more competitive few scholars talk candidly about their experiences negotiating a piece of writing into print These essays will help researchers practitioners and graduate students expand their understanding of what it means professionally and personally to write for publication Carefully crafted focused and provocative the chapters in this volume document authors experiences with a range of practical political and personal issues in writing for publication Many portray the hardship and struggle that are not obvious in a finished piece of writing Readers are encouraged to resonate with the events and issues portrayed and to connect the narratives to their own lives Practical information such as contact information for journal and book publishers manuscript guidelines and useful books are included in appendices Although organized thematically the essays in Writing for Scholarly Publication Behind the Scenes in Language Education overlap in many ways as each author considers multiple issues In the Introduction the editors discuss key aspects of writing for scholarly publication such as writing as situated practice issues faced by newcomers the construction of personal identity through writing writing and transparency facets of the interactive nature of scholarly writing and intertwined political issues Part I focuses on issues and concerns faced by Newcomers In Part II Negotiating and Interacting the essays closely examine the interactions among authors editors manuscript reviewers and collaborators these interactions tend to be the least often discussed and these essays therefore offer readers fascinating insights into the sensitive social political and personal relationships among the many players in the scholarly writing game Identity Construction is addressed in Part III where authors share their experiences with and reflections on the ways that professional writing helps them construct their identities as writers and scholars The essays in Part IV From the Periphery help redefine what the notion of periphery might mean from a concept with a negative connotation of outsider to a positive connotation of active and unconventional participant
