2023-01 book inventory vladimir djambov talmach.html Every Russian person sacredly loves his homeland And in the way Russian people relate to Russia there is a lot different from the attitude of foreigners to their native countries Russian people not only love their land as the place of their homeland and their ancestors where their whole life flows not only are grateful to her for the opportunity to lead a quiet life which she gives them Russians honor Russia as a sacred thing of the soul pray for it Miraculously their love for their native country is intertwined with faith in God They consider it a happy and longed for deed to die for their homeland and all their enthusiastic and special feeling for Russia is so clearly expressed in two words Holy Russia Why is one of all the countries in the world called Holy What is the difference between the people who applied this great word saint to the name of their land and does not call it otherwise Yes the significance of this name of Rus is great and a deep meaning is hidden in it This word also points to the special God's choice of the Russian people and to its special spiritual goals and aspirations There was in ancient times one sacred people descended from the righteous chosen by God The Lord Himself led him in wonderful ways gave him earthly power he could also receive future heavenly glory This people were Jews But this chosen people did not remain faithful to God's covenants at the head of it there were persons who replaced the living faith of the heart with the dry performance of certain external rites Life giving love has dried up in him And when the God of love sent into the world to save people to remove the curse for the Fall of the first man His Son the Jews did not recognize Christ and the Son of Man was crucified in Jerusalem on the cross And the bright destiny that this people could acquire for itself was forever destroyed by a terrible cry before Pilate condemned Christ His blood be on us and on our children

The Old Faith and the Russian Land Douglas Rogers, 2016-02-04 The Old Faith and the Russian Land is a historical ethnography that charts the ebbs and flows of ethical practice in a small Russian town over three centuries The town of Sepych was settled in the late seventeenth century by religious dissenters who fled to the forests of the Urals to escape a world they believed to be in the clutches of the Antichrist Factions of Old Believers as these dissenters later came to be known have maintained a presence in the town ever since The townspeople of Sepych have also been serfs free peasants collective farmers and now shareholders in a post Soviet cooperative Douglas Rogers traces connections between the town and some of the major transformations of Russian history showing how townspeople have responded to a long series of attempts to change them and their communities tsarist era efforts to regulate family life and stamp out Old Belief on the Stroganov estates Soviet collectivization drives and antireligious campaigns and the marketization religious revival and ongoing political transformations of post Soviet times Drawing on long term ethnographic fieldwork and extensive archival and manuscript sources Rogers argues that religious political and economic practice are overlapping arenas in which the people of Sepych have striven to be ethical in relation to labor and money food and drink prayers and rituals religious books and manuscripts and the surrounding material landscape He tracks the ways in which ethical sensibilities about work and prayer hierarchy and inequality gender and generation have shifted and recombined over time Rogers concludes that certain expectations about how to be an ethical person have continued to orient townspeople in Sepych over the course of nearly three centuries for specific identifiable and often unexpected reasons Throughout he demonstrates what a historical and ethnographic study of ethics might look like and uses this approach to ask new questions of Russian Soviet and post Soviet history
