A Bloodless Victory Joseph F. Stoltz, 2017-12-24 This study of military historiography examines the changing narrative of the Battle of New Orleans through two centuries of commemoration Once celebrated on par with the Fourth of July the anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans is no longer a day of reverence for most Americans The United States stunning defeat of the British army on January 8th 1815 gave rise to the presidency of Andrew Jackson the Democratic Party and the legend of Jean Laffite Yet the battle has not been a national holiday since 1861 Joseph F Stoltz III explores how generations of Americans have consciously revised reinterpreted and reexamined the memory of the conflict to fit the cultural and social needs of their time Combining archival research with deep analyses of music literature theater and film across two centuries of American popular culture Stoltz highlights the myriad ways in which politicians artists academics and ordinary people have rewritten the battle s history From Andrew Jackson s presidential campaign to the occupation of New Orleans by the Union Army to the Jim Crow era the continuing reinterpretations of the battle alienated whole segments of the American population from its memorialization Thus a close look at the Battle of New Orleans offers an opportunity to explore not just how events are collectively remembered across generations but also how a society discards memorialization that is no longer necessary or palatable The Citizen Machine Anna McCarthy, 2013-03-31 This is the untold political history of television s formative era The author an historian goes behind the scenes of early television programming revealing that producers sponsors and scriptwriters had far more in mind than simply entertaining and selling products Long before the age of PBS leaders from business philanthropy and social reform movements as well as public intellectuals were all obsessively concerned with TV s potential to mold the right kind of citizen After World War II inspired by the perceived threats of Soviet communism class war and racial violence members of what was then known as the Establishment were drawn together by a shared conviction that television broadcasting could be a useful tool for governing The men of Du Pont the AFL CIO the Advertising Council the Ford Foundation the Fund for the Republic and other organizations interested in shaping according to American philosopher Mortimer Adler the ideas that should be in every citizen s mind turned to TV as a tool for reaching those people they thought of as the masses Based on years of archival work this work sheds new light on the place of television in the postwar American political landscape At a time when TV broadcasting is in a state of crisis and when a new political movement for media reform has ascended the political stage here is a new history of the ideas and assumptions that have profoundly shaped not only television but our political culture itself
