Self-Esteem in Education Kenzo Bergeron, 2017-08-24 In this book Bergeron demonstrates the negative emotional and pedagogical repercussions that result from American educators' embrace of self-esteem and the dogma surrounding its acceptance. Critically interpreting the meaning of self-esteem in education, he challenges common sense assumptions surrounding this notion and questions the historical, political, philosophical and pedagogical forces that have shaped this psychological construct in education. Interrogating the pedagogical practices linked to student empowerment, self-determination and social agency in the classroom, Bergeron discusses the ways in which the promise of self-esteem has backfired, particularly for marginalized and impoverished students.

Building Classroom Success Andrew Martin, 2016-02-29 School has the potential to be a major source of personal and academic fulfilment. However, the reality is that fear and failure pervade many students' academic lives. Rather than respond to these fears in constructive and courageous ways, many students engage in self-defeating, avoidant and helpless behaviours. This book examines the counterproductive strategies students use in schools today and suggests successful practices educators can adopt to eliminate fear and failure in the classroom and help students respond to their problematic behaviours in more positive and productive ways. Through building student success, educators build classroom success.

Action for Social Justice in Education Morwenna Griffiths, 2003-09-16 Once again Morwenna Griffiths has produced a book on an important topic that speaks to theorists and practitioners alike. Read it, Professor Alison Assiter, University of the West of England, Bristol. This is a must-read for anyone who wants to be provoked and supported toward action and change in education. Professor Marilyn Johnston, College of Education, Ohio State University, USA, a thoroughly engaging text. British Journal of Educational Studies. Socrates said we can't teach anyone anything but only help them to think; that's what this book did for me and that's why I liked this book and would recommend it to my students, my friends and my colleagues. Unlike the majority of academic books, I found myself treating it like a novel and saving it up to read before I went to sleep at night, reading it more slowly as it got near the end, not wanting it to be finished. I liked it because it resonated with many of my experiences over the years and reminded me that I'm not alone in finding the struggle for social justice in education hard but passionately worthwhile. In Service Education: Social justice is a verb. This book puts forward a view of social justice as action-orientated rather than as a static theory. Complex discussions of difference, equality, recognition and redistribution are made accessible and relevant to issues of class, race, gender, sexuality and disability. Interwoven with the discussion are compelling individual accounts of the pleasures and pains, the pitfalls and glittering prizes to be found in education, told by individuals coming from a diversity of social, economic and ethnic backgrounds. The second part of the book includes examples of successful interventions in real situations related to self-esteem, empowerment, partnership and the initiation of individual and joint action to improve social justice in education. The discussion is kept open through answering back sections by educators committed to social justice. Deborah Chetcuti, Max Biddulph, Ghazala Bhatti, Roy Corden, Melanie Walker, Jon Nixon and Kenneth Dunkwu. Pupil
