Shaping a Professional Identity Dorothy Jean Clandinin, F. Michael Connelly, Applebaum, Sheila Dermer, 1999 The Development of Professional Identity in Higher Education Myint Swe Khine, Abdulghani Muthanna, 2024-02-20 In this book first hand accounts from academics and practitioners explore the concept of professional identity development in the context of higher education and provide guidance to develop and enhance professionalism The Development of Professional Identity in Higher Education presents a new understanding of identity development Highlighting the importance of building positive identities in the development of a professional career it argues for a reframing of the way academics think of themselves suggesting the role of practitioner as one in which there is a continuous need to develop their professionalism as it connects to their daily practices and different identities With contributions from a range of international authors it demonstrates how professional development can change our beliefs and perceptions of the profession itself whether it be through on the job instruction aimed at making teachers researchers better or through self learning whereby teachers and researchers learn to develop and enhance their teaching and research competency through daily activities and self analysis This book will be of great interest to researchers and graduate and postgraduate students in teacher education and professional development

Professional Identity and Social Work Stephen A. Webb, 2017-06-26 How are identities formed among social workers many of whom perform complex challenging and ambiguous public sector functions on a regular basis Why does identity come to matter for professional social work This book the first of its kind in the field examines professional identity in relation to social work by asking how practitioners think of themselves as a social worker a professional self concept often entangled in a range of relations beliefs values and experiences Bringing together the perspectives of an internationally renowned group of specialists the collection addresses a range of issues associated with professional identity construction and being professional in the context of a rapidly changing inter professional environment It introduces new concepts to social work including materiality enactment performance affect entanglement capital and worth to consider the vexed issues surrounding matters of professional identity in social work This will be an essential guide to all those keen to debate the challenges and possibilities confronting contemporary social work through the lens of professional identity whether they are students educators practitioners researchers managers policy makers or associated professionals It will also appeal to those interested in social theory organisational sociology and leadership as well as anyone working in related fields of health and education

Identity Formation Denise MacGregor, 2009 The influences that shape beginning teachers professional identity have been described as part of a changing landscape Connelly and Clandinin 1999 When pre service teachers transition into the role of beginning in service teachers the landscape changes dramatically Aspects or features of the landscape that were once familiar may be confirmed or challenged As beginning teachers navigate the changing landscape they cross spatial physical experiences and temporal of the mind conceptual borders Connelly and Clandinin 1999 112 and in doing so shape their professional identity This paper reports on the findings of the initial stage of a doctoral study that examined the influences that final year pre service teachers believed would shape their professional identity once they crossed the border and commenced their role as in service teachers The first stage of the study involved twenty final year Design and Technology pre service teachers in focus group discussions to investigate personal perceptions of professional identity to identify factors that had shaped this perception to date and to predict future influences The findings demonstrated that while final year pre service teachers were prepared to approach their in service role with a high level of enthusiasm and confidence in their subject knowledge they feared perceived challenges such as a lack of mentoring support from teaching colleagues the perceptions of students and under valuing the place of Design and Technology Education in the curriculum including food and textile technology by school leadership could have a negative impact on shaping their professional identity These challenges became the spatial and temporal borders that pre service teachers believed they would need to navigate Such findings suggest that pre service teachers are well aware that aspects of the professional landscape will be challenging The implication for teacher education programs is to provide pre service teachers with strategies to cross the borders successfully
