Mao's China and the Cold War Jian Chen,2001 Mao's Third Front Covell F. Meyskens,2020-05-14 An examination of how economic development and everyday life intersected with the temperature of Cold War geopolitics in Mao s China

Mao's China and the Cold War Jian Chen,2010-03-15 This comprehensive study of China s Cold War experience reveals the crucial role Beijing played in shaping the orientation of the global Cold War and the confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union The success of China s Communist revolution in 1949 set the stage Chen says The Korean War the Taiwan Strait crises and the Vietnam War all of which involved China as a central actor represented the only major hot conflicts during the Cold War period making East Asia the main battlefield of the Cold War while creating conditions to prevent the two superpowers from engaging in a direct military showdown Beijing s split with Moscow and rapprochement with Washington fundamentally transformed the international balance of power argues Chen eventually leading to the end of the Cold War with the collapse of the Soviet Empire and the decline of international communism Based on sources that include recently declassified Chinese documents the book offers pathbreaking insights into the course and outcome of the Cold War

The Sino-Soviet Split Lorenz M. Lüthi,2010-12-16 A decade after the Soviet Union and the People s Republic of China established their formidable alliance in 1950 escalating public disagreements between them broke the international communist movement apart In The Sino Soviet Split Lorenz L thi tells the story of this rupture which became one of the defining events of the Cold War Identifying the primary role of disputes over Marxist Leninist ideology L thi traces their devastating impact in sowing conflict between the two nations in the areas of economic development party relations and foreign policy The source of this estrangement was Mao Zedong s ideological radicalization at a time when Soviet leaders mainly Nikita Khrushchev became committed to more pragmatic domestic and foreign policies Using a wide array of archival and documentary sources from three continents L thi presents a richly detailed account of Sino Soviet political relations in the 1950s and 1960s He explores how Sino Soviet relations were linked to Chinese domestic politics and to Mao s struggles with internal political rivals Furthermore L thi argues the Sino Soviet split had far reaching consequences for the socialist camp and its connections to the nonaligned movement the global Cold War and the Vietnam War The Sino Soviet Split provides a meticulous and cogent analysis of a major political fallout between two global powers opening new areas of research for anyone interested in the history of international relations in the socialist world

Mao, Stalin and the Korean War Shen Zhihua,2012-06-25 This book examines relations between China and the Soviet Union during the 1950s and provides an insight into Chinese thinking about the Korean War This volume is based on a translation of Shen Zihua s best selling Chinese language book which broke the mainland Chinese taboo

on publishing non heroic accounts of the Korean War The author combined information detailed in Soviet era diplomatic documents released after the collapse of the Soviet Union with Chinese memoirs official document collections and scholarly monographs in order to present a non ideological realpolitik account of the relations motivations and actions among three Communist actors Stalin Mao Zedong and Kim Il sung This new translation represents a revisionist perspective on trilateral Communist alliance relations during the Korean War shedding new light on the origins of the Sino Soviet split and the rather distant relations between China and North Korea It features a critical introduction to Shen s work and the text is based on original archival research not found in earlier books in English This book will be of much interest to students of Communist China Stalinist Russia the Korean War Cold War Studies and International History in general □□ Mao's China and the cold war. by Jian Chen ,2003 China and the United States Xiaobing Li,Hongshan Li,1997-12-11 This essay collection presents a new examination and fresh insight into Sino American relations from the end of World War II to the 1960s The compilation breaks new ground by exploring some of the untouched Chinese and Soviet Communist sources to document the major events and crises in East Asia It also identifies a new pattern of confrontations between China and America during the Cold War Based on extensive multi archival research utilizing recently released records the authors move the study away from the usual Soviet American rivalry and instead focus on the relatively unknown area of communists interactions and conflicts in order to answer questions such as why Beijing sent troops to Korea what role China played in the Vietnam War and why Mao caused crises in the Taiwan Straits The articles in the book examine Chinese perceptions and positions and discuss the nature and goals of China s foreign policy and its impact on Sino American relations during this crucial period

Mao's China and the Sino-Soviet Split Mingjiang Li,2013-03-01 The Sino Soviet split in the 1960s was one of the most significant events of the Cold War Why did the Sino Soviet alliance hailed by its creators as unbreakable eternal and as representing brotherly solidarity break up Why did their relations eventually evolve into open hostility and military confrontation With the publication of several works on the subject in the past decade we are now in a better position to understand and explain the origins of the Sino Soviet split But at the same time new questions and puzzles have also emerged The scholarly debate on this issue is still fierce This book the result of extensive research on declassified documents at the Chinese Foreign Ministry and on numerous other new Chinese materials sheds new light on the problem and makes a significant contribution to the debate More than simply an empirical case study by theorising the concept of the ideological dilemma Mingjiang Li s book attempts to address the relationship between ideology and foreign policy and discusses such pressing questions as why it is that an ideology can sometimes effectively dictate foreign policy whilst at other times exercises almost no significant influence at all This book will be of essential reading to anyone interested in Chinese Soviet history Cold War history International Relations and the theory of ideology 1956 Dandan Zhu,2013 This book makes sense of the inner connection between China s political and diplomatic involvement in the Hungarian crisis and the influence

this crisis had on a series of mysterious policy shifts China and the World since 1945 Chi-kwan Mark,2025-04-02 Now in its second edition China and the World since 1945 offers an accessible introduction to China's foreign policy and diplomatic history across a broad chronology After the century of humiliation China was in constant search of a new identity on the world stage which significantly changed the way the nation defined itself and its role in the world The book traces developments in China's relations with the two superpowers Asian neighbours Third World countries and European powers examining China's role in modern globalization and the international community It also considers the influence of domestic politics and ideology on China's international relations Fully revised and updated with the latest scholarship the second edition includes a new chapter on China's foreign relations under Xi Jinping's administration including the reassertion of China as a Communist state identification with the Global South and the New Cold War with the United States as both powers grapple for global influence By examining the rise of China from a long term historical perspective this concise yet comprehensive study will be essential to scholars and students of Chinese history and contemporary international relations

Mao and the Sino-Soviet Partnership, 1945-1959 Zhihua Shen,Yafeng Xia,2015-08-13 Based on Chinese archival documents interviews and more than twenty years of research on the subject Zhihua Shen and Yafeng Xia offer a comprehensive look at the Sino Soviet alliance between the end of the World War II and 1959 when the alliance was left in disarray as a result of foreign and domestic policies This book is a reevaluation of the history of this alliance and is the first book published in English to examine it from a Chinese perspective Mao and the Economic Stalinization of China, 1948-1953 Hua-Yu Li,2006-02-01 In the first systematic study of its kind Hua yu Li tackles one of the most important unresolved mysteries of the early history of the People's Republic of China_the economic policy shift of 1953 As a result of this policy shift the moderate economic policies of New Democracy were abruptly terminated_much sooner than specified by the official party line_and replaced with a radical Stalinist economic program called the general line for socialist transition Utilizing the rich archival materials released in China since the mid 1980s and Russian archival information released since the early 1990s Li presents a compelling explanation for the policy shift Placing the analysis within the larger context of the world communist movement communist ideology and Mao's complicated relationship with Stalin this book makes it clear that the policy shift was initiated by Mao and that he did so for two reasons First he was committed to a history text compiled under Stalin's guidance that purported to describe the Soviet experience of building socialism in the 1920s and 1930s Mao relied heavily on this text as a road map for China to follow in building socialism in the early 1950s Second Mao was driven by feelings of personal rivalry with Stalin and of national rivalry with the Soviet Union he wanted China to achieve socialism faster than the Soviet Union had The precise timing of the change Li argues resulted from Mao's belief that China was economically ready to build socialism and from his decision to interpret an ambiguous statement made by Stalin in October 1952 as a clear endorsement of a policy shift Li asserts that Mao was a committed Stalinist that he dominated domestic policy decision making and that he skillfully maneuvered his way through his negotiations with Stalin in advancing his own agenda. Situating its analysis within the larger context of the world communist movement, this carefully researched book will have a profound impact on the fields of communist studies and Sino Soviet relations and in studies of Mao Stalin and their relationship.

That Distant Country Next Door Erik Esselstrom, 2019-05-31 Japan's road to war in China in the 1930s 1940s is well known as are the legacies of that conflict in the diplomatic disputes territorial rows and educational policy battles between Japan and China since the 1980s. Less understood is the nature of Japan China relations in the intervening decades. How did a popular Japanese perception of China that facilitated imperial aggression become one that embraced restoring friendly diplomatic ties and cultivating mutually beneficial economic and cultural interactions? Exploring everyday Japanese impressions of the People's Republic of China from the end of the U.S. Occupation in 1952 to normalization of Japan China relations in 1972, this book analyzes representations of the PRC in Japanese print media and visual culture in connection with four topics: the 1954 visit to Japan by Minister of Health Li Dequan; China's atomic weapons testing in 1964; 1967 the Red Guard movement of the early Cultural Revolution years; and the culture of continental rediscovery in 1971. 1972 Japanese views of China under Mao were infused with elements of thematic and conceptual continuity linking the prewar wartime and postwar eras. In sketching out a portrait of these elements, Erik Esselstrom explains how the reconstruction of Japan's relationship with China included more than just the trials and tribulations of Cold War diplomacy. In so doing, he reintegrates postwar Japan China relations within the longer history of East Asian cultural interaction and engagement.

Mao and the Economic Stalinization of China, 1948-1953 Hua-Yu Li, 2006-02-01 In the first systematic study of its kind, Hua-yu Li tackles one of the most important unresolved mysteries of the early history of the People's Republic of China: the economic policy shift of 1953. As a result of this policy shift, the moderate economic policies of New Democracy were abruptly terminated, much sooner than specified by the official party line, and replaced with a radical Stalinist economic program called the general line for socialist transition. Utilizing the rich archival materials released in China since the mid 1980s and Russian archival information released since the early 1990s, Li presents a compelling explanation for the policy shift. Placing the analysis within the larger context of the world communist movement, communist ideology, and Mao's complicated relationship with Stalin, this book makes it clear that the policy shift was initiated by Mao and that he did so for two reasons. First, he was committed to a history text compiled under Stalin's guidance that purported to describe the Soviet experience of building socialism in the 1920s and 1930s. Mao relied heavily on this text as a road map for China to follow in building socialism in the early 1950s. Second, Mao was driven by feelings of personal rivalry with Stalin and of national rivalry with the Soviet Union; he wanted China to achieve socialism faster than the Soviet Union had. The precise timing of the change, Li argues, resulted from Mao's belief that China was economically ready to build socialism and from his decision to interpret an ambiguous statement made by Stalin in October 1952 as a clear endorsement of a policy shift. Li asserts that Mao was a committed Stalinist that he dominated domestic policy decision making and that he skillfully maneuvered his way through his negotiations with Stalin in advancing his own agenda Situating its analysis within the larger context of the world communist movement this carefully researched book will have a profound impact on the fields of communist studies and Sino Soviet relations and in studies of Mao Stalin and their relationship How Maoism Was Made Aaron William Moore, Jennifer Altehenger, 2024-12-26 How Maoism Was Made features new scholarship on the early years after the Chinese Communist revolution showing how ordinary people in China built socialism through their contributions to industry science and the arts

Europe and China in the Cold War, 2018-11-26 Europe and China in the Cold War studies Sino European relations from the establishment of the People's Republic of China PRC in 1949 to the Tiananmen Square protests of 1989 Based on new multi archival research the international authorship presents and analyses diplomatic and personal relationships between Europe and China at the political economic military cultural and technological levels In going beyond existing historiography the book comparatively focuses on the relations of both Eastern and Western Europe with the PRC and adopts a global history approach that also includes non state and transnational actors This will allow the reader to learn that the bloc logic and the Sino Soviet split were indeed influential yet not all determining factors in the relations between Europe and China

Economic Cold War Shu Guang Zhang, 2001 Why would one country impose economic sanctions against another in pursuit of foreign policy objectives How effective is the use of such economic weapons This book examines how and why the United States and its allies instituted economic sanctions against the People's Republic of China in the 1950s and how the embargo affected Chinese domestic policy and the Sino Soviet alliance Haunted by Chaos Sulmaan Wasif
