How the Private Sector Develops Skills: Lessons from Turkey United Nations Development Programme Istanbul International Center for Private Sector in Development (UNDP IICPSD),2015-03-01 Despite its vital role in development to increase access to sustainable income skills training has been experiencing severe problems worldwide such as lack of physical legal and educational infrastructure absence of a win win based cooperation between the private sector and vocational education and training agencies as well as matters of financing The state and development agencies on their own are limited in their capacity to tackle these problems It is difficult to close the gap between the supply of labour and the demands of the market which exacerbates the exclusion of the base of the pyramid from the economy especially in a globalizing world where the technological requirements are changing rapidly Private sector on the other hand has significant potential to address the deficiencies in skills development and bridge the gap between what the labour force has to offer and what the industry demands The companies can contribute to the skills training process which in turn can provide the required skilled employees for the market and offer employment opportunities particularly to the disadvantaged Private sector will not only help to improve national competitiveness and realize an increase in its profitability due to the availability of a better trained staff but also improve the inclusiveness of the market The publication is intended to be a first step towards generating knowledge on the role of private sector in skills generation for increased inclusiveness and employability It includes several case studies from Turkey in which the private sector has created significant added value through private sector led or PPP models of skills design and delivery It elaborates on the lessons learned from these cases to pave the way for further action and research on how business actors can contribute to skills development especially for the disadvantaged The publication will lead to further research products and reports and eventually toolkits on how to mobilize and engage the private sector in skills generation for better development results Workshops will be organized for the private sector governments and other relevant stakeholders based on these toolkits to facilitate knowledge sharing and encourage Project Finance in Developing Countries Priscilla Anita Ahmed, Xinghai Fang, 1999-01-01. This report explores the changing face of project finance in developing markets. IFC and more recently other multilateral, bilateral, and export credit institutions have played a strong supportive role in bringing project finance to its current volumes. This role was highlighted in 1998 when these institutions sustained flows of an estimated 25 billion at a time when there was an abrupt decline in some types of private flows. IFC, in particular, was a pioneer of project finance in developing countries and has a unique depth of experience in this field which spans more than 40 years in the practical implementation of some 2000 projects, many of them on a limited recourse basis. Particularly in today's marketplace, IFC's ability to mobilize finance, both loan and equity for its own account and syndicated loans under its B loan program, the strength of its project appraisal capabilities, and its experience in structuring complex transactions in difficult environments have been reassuring to other participants and important to the successful financing of many projects. This report draws on IFC's experience in more than 230 greenfield projects costing upward of 30 billion that relied on project finance on a limited recourse basis (see Appendix A). It opens with a brief description of the major international trends in project finance over the past two decades and then turns to the essential ingredients of successful project financing.

From Early Child Development to Human Development Mary E. Young, 2002. It is never too early to become involved, but it can easily be too late. Armed with such alarming statistics as 125 million primary school age children are not in school, another 150 million children drop out of primary school before they complete four years of education, and almost one half of the children in the least developed countries of the world do not have access to primary education, the World Bank convened a global conference in April 2000 to address the benefits and challenges of investing in early childhood development. Scientific studies now show how critical the first few years of a child's life are in terms of later physical and mental health, behavior, and capacity to learn. The Millennium Development Goals, endorsed by 189 member countries of the United Nations, and the World Bank are targets for reducing global poverty. The goals specifically address the need for universal primary education as a means for breaking the cycle of poverty in individual families and in countries With the publication of this volume which contains the conference proceedings the World Bank hopes to encourage a broader investment by countries companies organizations and private sector institutions in early child development Armed with such alarming statistics as 125 million primary school age children are not in school another 150 million children drop out of primary school before they complete four years of education and almost one half of the children in the least developed countries of the world do not have access to primary education the World Bank convened a global conference in April 2000 to address the benefits and challenges of investing in early childhood development Scientific studies now show how critical the first few years of a child s life are in terms of later physical and mental health behavior and capacity to learn The Millennium Development Goals endorsed by 189 member countries of the United Nations and the World Bank are targets for reducing global poverty The goals specifically address the need for universal primary education as a means for breaking the cycle of poverty in individual families and in countries With the publication of this volume which contains the conference proceedings the World Bank hopes to encourage a broader investment by countries companies organizations and private sector institutions in early child development
