Factory and Community in Stalin's Russia Kenneth M. Straus,2010-11-23 Kenneth Straus weaves together many threads in Russian social history to develop a new theory of working class formation in the years of Stalin s First Five Year Plan In so doing he addresses a long standing debate among historians by suggesting new answers to an old question Was there social support for the Stalin regime among the Soviet working class during the 1930s and if so why Straus argues that the keys for interpreting Stalinism lie in occupational specialization on the one hand and community organization on the other He focuses on the daily life of the new Soviet workers in the factory and community arguing that the most significant new trends saw peasants becoming open hearth steel workers housewives becoming auto assembly line workers and machine operatives and youth training en masse rather than occupations categories in the vocational schools in the factories the FZU Tapping archival material only recently available and a wealth of published sources Straus presents Soviet social history within a new analytical framework suggesting that Stalinist forced industrialization and Soviet proletarianization is best understood within a comparative European framework in which the theories of Marx Durkheim and Weber best elucidate both the broad similarities with Western trends and the striking exceptional aspects of the Soviet experience

Rewriting History in Soviet Russia R. Markwick,2001-02-01 This book explores the political significance of the development of historical revisionism in the USSR under Khrushchev in the wake of the Twentieth Congress of the CPSU and its demise with the onset of the period of stagnation under Brezhnev On the basis of intensive interviews and original manuscript material the book demonstrates that the vigorous rejuvenation of historiography undertaken by Soviet historians in the 1960s conceptually cleared the way for and fomented the dramatic upheaval in Soviet historical writing occasioned by the advent of perestroika
