Self And World:

Self and World in Schopenhauer's Philosophy Christopher Janaway, 1989-03-09 Arthur Schopenhauer's central philosophical achievement was his account of the self and its relation to the world of objects. Embracing epistemological, metaphysical, psychological and physiological concerns, his dynamic system of thought reveals in a unique way the serious philosophical conflicts that can arise when we think about the self. This book is the first full length study of this theme and Christopher Janaway's approach to it is historical yet at the same time has a clear philosophical emphasis. He explores in unusual depth Schopenhauer's often ambivalent relation to Kant, seeing him as a pertinent critic especially on the issues of idealism and free will. He shows that while accepting transcendental idealism and the notion of a pure knowing 'I', Schopenhauer was always concerned to establish a rival view of the self as willing, primarily active, embodied, organic and manifesting pre-rational ends and drives. In the final part of the book Janaway highlights the influence of Schopenhauer. Self and World Quassim Cassam, 1999 The Selfless Mind Peter Harvey, 2013-09-13 This careful analysis of early Buddhist thought opens out a perspective in which no permanent Self is accepted but a rich analysis of changing and potent mental processes is developed. It explores issues relating to the not-Self, teaching self-development, moral responsibility, the between-lives period and the undetermined questions on the world, on the life principle and on the liberated one after death. It examines the person as a flowing continuity centred on consciousness or discernment, vinnana configured in changing minds, setsa, cittas. The resting state of this is seen as brightly shining like the Buddha nature of Mahayana thought so as to represent the potential for Nirvana. Nirvana is then shown to be a state in which consciousness transcends all objects and thus participates in a timeless, unconditioned realm. Re-Thinking the Sociality of the Self Kurt C. M. Mertel, 2025-07-16 This book is the first in a two-volume project that provides the first systematic interpretation of Martin Heidegger's fundamental ontology as a critical social ontology. It argues that fundamental ontology is at its core an emancipatory enterprise in that it is animated by an intent shared with critical theory, viz. to make philosophy concrete for the sake of individual and collective freedom. Focused on Division One of Being and Time, this volume maintains that the possibilities of individual emancipation and self-actualization are inextricably bound to their environmental and intersubjective preconditions. An adequate ontology of the self therefore is possible only as a social ontology. To fulfill its emancipatory aims, however, it is necessary to show that the fact that individuals are always already appropriated by society does not preclude the possibility of authentic self-appropriation. Hence this volume critically reconstructs the core commitments of the appropriative approach to social ontology and distinguishes between the foundational and peripheral aspects of fundamental ontology. The final part addresses important criticisms that have impeded a fruitful dialogue between fundamental ontology and critical theory to clear the ground for a fresh re-appraisal of the former as an emancipatory project. Figuring the Self David E.
