

A person is shown from the waist up, sitting in a meditative pose with their hands resting on their knees. They are wearing a light-colored, possibly white, garment. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. A large, dark shadow of the person is cast onto the floor in front of them, extending towards the bottom of the frame. The shadow is very dark and appears to be made of a solid material, possibly a large, dark object placed behind the person to create the effect.

Spirituality Peter C. Jupp, 2016-03-16 The emergence of spirituality in contemporary culture in holistic forms suggests that organised religions have failed This thesis is explored and disputed in this book in ways that mark important critical divisions This is the first collection of essays to assess the significance of spirituality in the sociology of religion The authors explore the relationship of spirituality to the visual individualism gender identity politics education and cultural capital The relationship between secularisation and spirituality is examined and consideration is given to the significance of Simmel in relation to a sociology of spirituality Problems of defining spirituality are debated with reference to its expression in the UK the USA France and Holland This timely original and well structured volume provides undergraduates postgraduates and researchers with a scholarly appraisal of a phenomenon that can only increase in sociological significance Authentic

Sarah Banet-Weiser, 2012-10-15 Brands are everywhere Branding is central to political campaigns and political protest movements the alchemy of social media and self branding creates overnight celebrities the self proclaimed greening of institutions and merchant goods is nearly universal But while the practice of branding is typically understood as a tool of marketing a method of attaching social meaning to a commodity as a way to make it more personally resonant with consumers Sarah Banet Weiser argues that in the contemporary era brands are about culture as much as they are about economics That in fact we live in a brand culture Authentic maintains that branding has extended beyond a business model to become both reliant on and reflective of our most basic social and cultural relations Further these types of brand relationships have become cultural contexts for everyday living individual identity and personal relationships what Banet Weiser refers to as brand cultures Distinct brand cultures that at times overlap and compete with each other are taken up in each chapter the normalization of a feminized self brand in social media the brand culture of street art in urban spaces religious brand cultures such as New Age Spirituality and Prosperity Christianity and the culture of green branding and shopping for change In a culture where graffiti artists loan their visions to both subway walls and department stores buying a cup of fair trade coffee is a political statement and religion is mass marketed on t shirts Banet Weiser questions the distinction between what we understand as the authentic and branding practices But brand cultures are also contradictory and potentially rife with unexpected possibilities leading Authentic to articulate a politics of ambivalence creating a lens through which we can see potential political possibilities within the new consumerism

Do Christians Know How to be Spiritual? John Drane, 2020-04-28 After a century or more of convincing ourselves that intelligent people should be secular it is now trendy to be spiritual Why the sudden change And what do we mean by being spiritual John Drane presents a whirlwind tour of the phenomenon of cultural change as it is being experienced in the West identifying the challenges and opportunities this presents to the Christian church He examines the question of whether human beings are intrinsically programmed to be spiritual offers theological reflection on the New Age phenomenon and focuses on how the Christian community can connect with spiritual seekers in today s world

Australian Sport Kristine Toohey, Tracy Taylor, 2013-10-18 Australia is only a small player in the world s political and economic landscapes yet for many decades it has been considered to be a global powerhouse in terms of its sporting successes In conjunction with this notion the nation has long been portrayed as having a preoccupation with sport This labelling has been seen as both a blessing and a curse Those who value a Bourdieuan view of culture bemoan sport s centrality to the national imagination and the consequent lack of media coverage funding and prestige accorded to the arts Other scholars question whether the popular stereotype of the Australian sportsperson is in fact a myth and that instead Australians are predominantly passive sport consumers rather than active sport participants Australian sport through its successes on the field of play and in advancing sport coaching and management has undergone a revolution as both an enabler of global processes and as subject to its influences economic political migratory etc This book will examine the shifting place of Australian sports in current global and local environs from the perspective of spectators players and administrators This book was previously published as a special issue of Sport in Society

Secularism and Religion-Making Markus Dressler, Arvind Mandair, 2011-10-03 This book conceives of religion making broadly as the multiple ways in which social and cultural phenomena are configured and reconfigured within the matrix of a world religion discourse that is historically and semantically rooted in particular Western and predominantly Christian experiences, knowledges and institutions. It investigates how religion is universalized and certain ideas, social formations and practices rendered religious are thus integrated in and subordinated to very particular, mostly liberal secular assumptions about the relationship between history, politics and religion. The individual contributions, written by a new generation of scholars with decisively interdisciplinary approaches, examine the processes of translation and globalization of historically specific concepts and practices of religion and its dialectical counterpart, the secular, into new contexts. This volume contributes to the relatively new field of thought that aspires to unravel the thoroughly intertwined relationships between religion and secularism as modern concepts.

Religion in Consumer Society François Gauthier, 2016-04-08 Presenting an overview of an emerging field in the study of contemporary religion, this book, together with a complementary volume Religion in the Neoliberal Age, explores issues of religion, neoliberalism and consumer society. Claiming that we have entered a new phase that implies more than the recasting of state-religion relations, the authors examine how religious changes are historically anchored in modernity but affected by the commoditization, mediatization, neoliberalization and globalization of society and social life. Religion in Consumer Society explores religion as both shaped by consumer culture and as shaping consumer culture. Following an introduction which critically analyses studies on consumer culture and integrates scholarship in the sociology of religion, this book explores the following topics: how consumerism and electronic media have shaped globalized culture and how this is affecting religion; the dynamics and characteristics of often overlooked middle class religion and how these relate to globalization and differences between developed and emerging countries; emerging trends and how we understand phenomena as different as mega churches and holistic spiritualistic journeys; and how the pressures of consumer culture act on religious traditions, indigenous and exogenous. The politics of religious phenomena in the Age of Neoliberalism and the hybrid areas emerging from these reconfigurations of religion and the market. Outlining changes in both the political, institutional and cultural spheres, the contributors offer an international overview of developments in different countries and state-of-the-art representation of religion in the new global political economy.

Stereotyping Religion II Brad Stoddard, Craig Martin, 2023-05-18 Building on the success of Stereotyping Religion, Critiquing Clicks this follow-up volume dismantles a further 10 widespread stereotypes and clichs about religion, focusing on clichs that a new generation of students are most familiar with. Each chapter includes: A description of a particular cliché; Discussion of where it appears in popular culture or popular media; Discussion of where it appears in scholarly literature; A historical contextualization of its use in the past; An analysis of the social or rhetorical work the cliché accomplishes in the present. Clichs addressed include: Religion and science naturally conflict; All religions are against LGBTQ rights; Eastern religions are more spiritual than Western religions Religion is personal and not subject to government regulation Religious pluralism gives everyone a voice Written in an easy and accessible style Stereotyping Religion II Critiquing Click s is suitable for all readers looking to clear away unsophisticated assumptions in preparation for more critical studies
