States was transformed from isolationism to belligerence in the years before the attack on Pearl Harbor. From the moment it realized that all was lost without American aid, the British Government employed a host of persuasive tactics to draw the US to its rescue. With the help of talents as varied as those of matinee idol Leslie Howard, Oxford philosopher Isaiah Berlin, and society photographer Cecil Beaton, no section of America remained untouched and no method from Secret Service intrigue to the publication of horrifying pictures of Nazi atrocities remained untried. The British sought and won the support of key journalists and broadcasters including Edward R. Murrow, Dorothy Thompson, and Walter Winchell. Hollywood film makers also played a willing part. Cull details these and other propaganda activities covering the entire range of the British effort. A fascinating story of how a foreign country provoked America's involvement in its greatest war. Selling War will appeal to all those interested in the modern cultural and political history of Britain and the United States. Gangs of America Ted Nace, 2003. The corporation has become the core institution of the modern world. Designed to seek profit and power, it has pursued both with endless tenacity, steadily bending the framework of law and even challenging the sovereign status of the state. Where did the corporation come from? How did it get so much power? What is its ultimate trajectory? In Gangs of America, Ted Nace traces the rise of corporate power through a series of fascinating stories, each organized around a different facet of the central question: How did corporations get more rights than people? The result is an illuminating account of the people and events that have shaped this puzzling, endlessly evolving entity. From publisher's description.
