Selling Our Security The Erosion Of Americas Assets:

Pinstripe Patronage Martin Tolchin, Susan J. Tolchin, 2015-12-22 Political patronage awarding discretionary favors in exchange for political support is alive and well in 21st century America This book examines the little understood patronage system showing how it is used by pinstripe elites to subvert the democratic process Pinstripe patronage thrives on the billions of dollars distributed by government for the privatisation of public services Martin and Susan Tolchin introduce us to government grants specified for the use of an individual corporation or community and hybrid agencies with high salaries for top executives and board members In return for this corporate welfare pinstripe partons giving politicians the ever increasing funds needed to conduct their political campaigns As budget cuts begin to bite the authors argue that it is time to clamp down on the corrupt practice of pinstripe patronage

"Rich Nation, Strong Army" Richard J. Samuels, 2018-08-06 Since World War II Japan has become not only a model producer of high tech consumer goods but also despite minimal spending on defense a leader in innovative technology with both military and civilian uses In the United States nearly one in every three scientists and engineers was engaged in defense related research and development at the end of the Cold War but the relative strength of the American economy has declined in recent years What is the relationship between what has happened in the two countries And where did Japan s technological excellence come from In an economic history that will arouse controversy on both sides of the Pacific Richard J Samuels finds a key to Japan s success in an ideology of technological development that advances national interests From 1868 until 1945 the Japanese economy was fired by the development of technology to enhance national security the rallying cry Rich Nation Strong Army accompanied the expanded military spending and aggressive foreign policy that led to the disasters of the War in the Pacific Postwar economic planners reversed the assumptions that had driven Japan s industrialization Samuels shows promoting instead the development of commercial technology and infrastructure By valuing process improvements as much as product innovation the modern Japanese system has built up the national capacity to innovate while ensuring that technological advances have been diffused broadly through industries such as aerospace that have both civilian and military applications Struggling with the uncertainties of a post Cold War economy the United States has important lessons to learn from the way Japan has subordinated defense production yet emerged as one of the most technologically sophisticated nations in the world The Japanese like the Venetians and the Dutch before them show us that butter is just as likely as guns to make a nation strong but that nations cannot hope to be strong without an ideology of technological development that nourishes the entire national economy

Winners and Losers in Globalization Guillermo de la Dehesa, 2008-04-15 Seeking reason in the impassioned globalization debate de la Dehesa examines who stands to win and who stands to lose from the process of globalization in a style accessible to readers unfamiliar with economic theory Objectively and dispassionately illuminates the emotionally charged globalization debate Acknowledges that the costs and benefits of globalization will not be distributed evenly Details the economic effects of globalization on individuals governments nation states and business Assesses the impact of globalization on both labor markets and financial markets on global economic growth and on income distribution and real convergence between different national economies

Global Corporations and National Governments Edward Graham, 1996-06-01 There is inherent tension between the increasingly global focus of foreign investors and the continuing national focus of governments Countries particularly developing ones compete to attract investment from global corporations and they attach performance requirements to tilt the impact of those investments in their favor This is because the host nations expect investment to raise growth levels efficiency and living standards At the same time the home countries of such corporations worry that their firms are not accorded fair and reciprocal treatment abroad These issues have become a source of conflict among nations one that could escalate considerably if an agreement is not soon reached Graham's study analyzes the nature and depth of the international investment problem and its potential impact on the world economy and on economic relations among nations He urges that current rules on foreign direct investment be enlarged and restructured via new international rules and institutional arrangements and offers two alternatives for doing so

The Public International Law Regime Governing International Investment José E. Alvarez, 2011-07-20 This monograph considers the ramifications of the legal regime that governs transborder capital flows This regime consists principally of a network of some 3 000 investment treaties as well as a growing body of arbitral decisions Professor Alvarez contends that the contemporary international investment regime should no longer be described as a species of territorial empire imposed by rich capital exporters on capital importers He examines the evolution of investment treaties and investor State jurisprudence constante and identifies the connections between these and general trends within public international law including the increased resort to treaties treaty ratification growing risks to the law's consistency fragmentation and the proliferation of forms of international adjudication judicialization Professor Alvarez also considers whether the regime's efforts to balance the needs of non State investors and sovereigns ought to be characterized as global administrative law as a form of constitutionalization or as an increasingly human rights centred enterprise

Unwanted Company Jonathan Crystal, 2003 US firms especially multinationals have conflicting interests regarding investment protection Crystal shows Many American firms under siege from overseas competitors have already expended considerable energy in obtaining trade protection but they are competing not only with foreign imports but also with locally established foreign owned firms American businesses may favour stricter regulation of foreign companies that threaten their bottom line but they also consider their own interests as global investors subject to retaliatory protection in other countries Restrictions on foreign investment it seems are not so attractive when they are imposed by other countries

Troubled Partnership Mark Lorell, 2020-03-09 During World War II Japanese fighters such as the famed Zero were among the most respected and feared combat aircraft in the world But for decades following the defeat of Japan in 1945 a variety of political and economic factors prevented Japan from developing its own modern national fighter This changed in the 1980s Japan began independently developing its first world class fighter since World War II After several years of contentious negotiations the Japanese agreed to work with the United States to cooperatively develop a minimally modified F 16 the FS X The new fighter however has evolved into a world class aircraft developed largely by Japanese Industry primarily due to errors committed by the U S side By the fall of 1995 fifty years after the end of World War II the Zero for the 1990s will have made its first flight catapulting Japan into the elite ranks of nations capable of developing the most advanced weapon systems In Troubled Partnership Mark Lorell traces the evolution of the FS X disclosing the conflicting economic and security objectives advanced by U S officials the flawed U S policy of technology reciprocity and the challenges of International collaboration Its deep Intimacy with the Interplay of policy and economy will make this volume of Intense Interest to political Scientists military studies specialists historians and government officials

The International Political Economy of Transformation in Argentina, Brazil and Chile Since 1960 E.
